Or; Phainon sees a hot cowboy riding a mechanical bull in a bar, and maybe not only a mechanical bull.

Notes

I blame Silas and Waxwing for this.
they gave me this idea last night and yeah...

Smth smth I wrote it with my imaginary dick.

See the end of the work for more notes

Phainon blames Cipher for this.

The half feline woman is the only reason he's standing inside a 'wild-west' themed bar, already regretting every decision that led him here. He's assaulted by neon signs, country music, and the overwhelming smell of beer and peanuts, and well, the floor seems to be assaulted by the latter too.

There are peanut shells literally everywhere.

Floor aside, fake wagon wheels are hanging crookedly above booths, followed by animal skulls —are they real? Please don't be real—and the highlight of the show, he supposes: A fake bull in the center, trashing in a mechanical pattern as it sends another drunk victim to the padded floor below.

Cipher grabs his wrist, cutting his line of thought, and drags him further inside. He stumbles after her, narrowly avoiding getting elbowed by a man in a cowboy hat that looks too big for his head.

"Oh, come on! This place is really popular for queer students," Cipher says over her shoulder. Did he make a face for her to notice his displeasure? Apparently he did, because she grins wider. "Besides, you need to loosen up."

"I am loose," Phainon protests, which is a blatant lie, the kind that fools absolutely no one, but in his defense, finals and lack of privacy do that to a person. His dorm roommate hasn't left their shared room for days, and Phainon really needs some alone time with his dick and a nice video or two…

"I just don't think this is the place to get loose."

He's too late. Cipher already plops down at one of the barstools, pats the one next to her for him to sit on, and flags the bartender with alarming confidence.

“Two shots,” she shouts louder than the music. Then, glancing back at Phainon with a wicked smile, she changes her mind, “Actually, make that ten, mix one shot of water in there.”

“What are you up to?”

The bartender nods at her like it’s a normal occurrence, and she spins on her stool to face Phainon fully, resting her chin in her palm. “A little drinking game.”

“No.”

“Yes.”

“I don’t remember agreeing to anything.”

“You came with me. That was consent.” She smirks, radiant with bad decisions.

“That’s not how that works!” Phainon’s protest falls on deaf ears, as he eyes the shot glasses placed in front of them. There’s no way for him to win this one he’s afraid, all he can do is tag with whatever chaos the half-feline came up with, and remind his hungover self tomorrow to never join her at a bar again. A reminder he keeps forgetting.

Cipher slides one shot glass toward him, not waiting for him to bother asking. “We take turns, the first one to land on the water shot rides the bull in the middle, it’ll be fun!”

“Oh. That’s it?” he says, some tension draining from his shoulders. Seems like his chaotic friend is feeling merciful tonight. “Easy.”

Cipher snorts. “You say that now when you’re fully sober.”

“I grew up on a farm,” Phainon reminds her, dunking the first shot.

“It absolutely is.”

Four shots later, Phainon is a lot more loose than he was upon entering the bar, and deeply confident in his life choices—right up until he lands on the water shot.

“Guess it’s my loss,” he huffs, slowly getting up.

“Still thinking it’ll be easy? Go show me then!” Cipher teases, annoyingly. She looks like the drinks have no effect on her, which feels unfair and deeply personal, because he certainly feels them.

Oh, he absolutely will. He’s got this. He climbed sheep as a toddler, rode horses, and ran through wheat fields until sunset. Surely he’s athletic enough to balance a minute or two on a fake cow.

And then he sees the man currently riding the bull. And ride he does.

Phainon's entire brain screeches to a halt, sobering up instantly.

The man’s body is absurd, and his skill. God... The sight burns behind his eyelids, blood already flowing south with alarming efficiency.

His hair, blond and dyed red at the tips is tied back in a messy ponytail, loose strands plastered to the sweaty skin of his neck. He wears a black button-up that is open three buttons too far, showing his very generous and absurdly big pectorals, and don’t get him started on the red tattoos. His jeans look painted on the upper half, then flaring from the knee down.

Damn him if that's not the hottest cowboy Phainon has ever seen.

Mystery-hot-blonde is riding that bull like it’s nothing; hips rolling smoothly, thighs flexing, one hand holding a cowboy hat up in the air purely to show off.

Phainon can’t take his eyes away.

The bull does a violent spin next, and the man counters it with a lazy roll of his hips, round and perky ass gliding on the—what was the material again? he can’t think— bull in perfect time with the machine’s rhythm, riding it without effort, a smug grin flashing under the lights. Directly at him.

Phainon’s mouth goes dry.

“If he can ride a fake bull like that…”

Fuck.

His brain chooses that exact moment to provide him a very vivid image of this absurdly handsome man riding his cock rather than a bull, and Phainon has never prayed this hard for someone to be single in his entire life.

He needs to test that absurd body himself. For science. Obviously.

The machine finally slows, and his remaining functional braincell returns to the hot blonde who dismounts with an easy hop, landing on his feet to a round of applause. He hears claps, whistles, and a name he does not catch, too busy staring at that perfectly round ass.

Cipher pops next to him, pointing shamelessly at the man, or the bull, he’s not sure. “Still think it’s easy?”

“Yes,” Phainon says immediately, not thinking.

Thinking is for sober people after all, and he’s pretty sure he looks more like a god right now, a dog that’s drooling in front of a snack it cannot reach. Except, thanks to the liquid courage boost, he is absolutely going to try reaching for that snack. Right now.

So, he adds louder, “I bet I could do better.”

Cipher’s head snaps toward him, an expression of genuine surprise written on her face. “You what?”

“I mean,” he gestures vaguely toward the bull, then at the man, who is looking back at him under the cowboy hat, and fuck, even his eyes are mesmerizing— sharp and shining like molten gold under the bar’s low lights.

Phainon’s mouth keeps running, self-preservation nowhere to be found. “It doesn’t look that hard.”

Those same sharp eyes sweep over his form, slow and assessing, and the corner of the man's mouth twitches into a smirk. He takes a step closer, close enough that Phainon can see the small streak of matching red eyeliner under his right eye, and his smirk widens in amusement.

"Is that so?" Mystery-hot-guy murmurs right in front of his face. His voice is low, smooth, seductive… And oh boy, he needs to hear this man moan his name like, right now.

"Yeah," Phainon swallows the erotic thought away, forcing a grin. "And if I do better," he pauses, his own baby blue eyes meeting gold-like ones in what he hopes is a confident look, "you should give me your number."

Cipher snorts behind him, but he chooses to ignore her.

The man snorts too, eyes crinkling at the corners and shoulders shaking with laughter. It does things to Phainon's heart that he refuses to acknowledge.

"Alright," he pats Phainon on his shoulder, encouraging. "Let's see how good you are."

He's pretty sure he hears someone starting a bet pool behind them, probably Cipher. She'll be happy for sure once he gets her a nice sum of balance coins, maybe even pay for the drinks, for once.

Or maybe not.

Reality crashes down on him the second he's sat on the bull. It's less stable than he thought; there's nowhere to hold but a rope above him, and the second the thing starts moving, he's clinging to it for dear life, looking no different than a koala bear clinging to a tree.

This only looked easy.

The bull jerks to the side and Phainon yelps— loud and embarassing, clinging tighter to the smooth surface. His body slips more and more to the side with every passing second, and when the bull bucks hard forward, he flies off of it and into the ground.

He held on that stupid thing for not even a minute.

Embarrassing.

Phainon lands on the mat below in an undignified heap, staring at the ceiling, chest heaving and pride deeply wounded. He hates mechanical bulls.

Cipher is crying with laughter nearby.

“I can’t stay mad for losing the bet,” she gasps between fits of laughter, “The way you clung to it for dear life was priceless.”

“I hate you as much as the bull right now.” Phainon groans and covers his face when a pair of cowboy boots step into his field of vision, the part that isn’t covered by his hands at least.

The blonde-haired man crouches down in front of him, still smirking, eyes bright with amusement. Up close, he’s even more unfairly attractive. The lights catch the sharp lines of his face, the way his nose crooks slightly, and the very kissable lips he has to physically stop himself from reaching for.

“Better than me, huh?” he teases.

Phainon groans again, defeated. “I’m never getting your number...”

The man chuckles and extends his hand, voice dropping lower so only Phainon hears the next words. “Oh, I don’t know, you were entertaining.”

His eyes flick briefly toward Phainon’s face. Then lower, to where Phainon prays his erection isn’t obvious, and back up again with a hungry gaze. “Why don’t we continue this talk somewhere more private?”

Phainon barely has time to process that sentence before a warm hand closes around his wrist, dragging him up and through the crowd, away from a very smug-looking Cipher and the sea of people, until he’s pushed into a bathroom stall and down to the closed toilet lid in an uncomfortable position.

Oh god.

“Name is Mydei, you?”

“Phainon,” he gulps.

Mydei—it’s nice to finally put a name to the handsome face—doesn’t waste time. He hangs his hat on the door’s hanger and climbs his lap like it’s no different than the stupid bull, toned thighs bracketing Phainon’s own, denim scraping against denim. Phainon’s hands fly to Mydei’s waist on instinct, and fuck, that waist is more snatched than it looks, perfect for his big palms…

A hard grind against his clothed cock cuts the thought away, tearing a broken “god, Mydei,” out of Phainon's throat. The pressure is so good. Mydei rolls his hips forward with a slow, teasing drag that makes the zipper of Phainon’s jeans rub just right against his length.

It’s maddening, the friction is rough but Phainon can feel himself filling up into a painful hardness already, wanting nothing more than to take their cocks out and rub them together, or better: push Mydei to his knees and shove his cock into that sinful looking mouth.

On his lap, the blonde smirks as if reading his thoughts, confident and infuriating, and finally leans close enough for Phainon to capture his soft lips in a kiss.

Their mouths collide in a messy kiss, and Phainon groans into it, head falling back against the water tank when Mydei bites his lower lip—tugging on it with his teeth like he’s trying to devour him.

Phainon’s hands leave the blonde’s waist and slide under the open shirt, palms tracing over the hard muscles that flex every time Mydei rocks his hips forward, and it feels so good he could cry. He cups the man’s chest at first, feeling the soft muscle and the hard nipples, enjoying the gasp Mydei lets into the kiss as he teases the sensitive buds with his blunt nails.

He keeps one palm on Mydei's chest, allowing the other to drag slowly, teasingly across the flat planes of the blonde's stomach, and down the coarse trail of hair disappearing inside his jeans.

"Phainon, fuck," the action rewards him with a quiet moan of his name.

Heavens above, Phainon is so pent up that moan makes him throb painfully against the confines of his jeans, and Mydei must be just as hard too, especially with how much he's grinding on his cock.

So, he reaches out, fingers fumbling with the button, unzipping the basically painted fabric, ready to tug on what he assumes must be an equally hard cock, only to find nothing but slick wetness instead.

Phainon's brain blacks out for a second. Then floods with static and static and more static. His fingers come away glistening with something he knows for sure is not precome. Mydei bites his lower lip again, pulling a whimper out of him, then soothes it with a softer kiss.

"Fuck," he gasps against the blonde's mouth. "You're—"

"Is that a problem?"

"A-absolutely not!" Phainon stammers, except that it is a problem of a different kind. He wants nothing more than to bury his tongue in Mydei's cunt and make the man cry his name, lap up every drop until Mydei's thighs shake around his head, then spread his legs and bury his aching cock inside the undoubtedly tight heat, fill him up again and again...

His cock leaks more precome eagerly, pulsing as if begging its owner and Mydei alike to make that fantasy come true.

However, the mentioned man appears to have different ideas. Mydei lifts himself and reaches for Phainon's jeans, unzipping them enough to ease some of the pressure.

Cool air hits his overheated skin, and Phainon hisses as Mydei's fingers brush the wet patch on his boxers, tracing the outline of his cock with deliberate slowness, looking impressed at the size of Phainon's length.

"Tell me what's going in that pretty head of yours."

He punctuates the question with another squeeze to his clothed cock and sits back down on his lap, rolling his hips experimentally dragging the fabric of his jeans right on Phainon's bulge. Gods, he's so hard it hurts—throbbing, leaking so much precome, every grind of Mydei's hips sending sparks up his spine and more dampness to the already wet patch on his underwear.

"I want to eat you out, make you come on my tongue, fuck you, anything… Please," Phainon begs between muffled moans, voice cracking as Mydei circles his hips again, pressing the seam of his jeans right against the sensitive underside of Phainon's cock.

"Maybe next time." Mydei muses, breath hot against his ear, and Phainon is barely able to register anything besides 'there would be a next time'.

The promise alone makes his hips buck with anticipation, an action Mydei doesn't seem to like, because he braces one hand on the water tank for leverage picks up the pace, practically riding Phainon's clothed cock the same way he rode the bull earlier.

"Be a good boy and come for me?" he murmurs, voice strained with the effort to keep the uncomfortable position, knee almost sliding off the lid. "I'll reward you nicely."

Phainon whines, actually whines at the praise, and his hands clamp down on Mydei's hips, trying to hold him still as his hips thrust up, or press him harder; he's no longer sure. All he knows is that the friction is perfect, and he wants to be good for this man and come like he asked and—

He chokes on a moan, hips snapping up as he comes, spilling hot and messy into his boxers, pulse after pulse soaking through the thin fabric and into Mydei's jeans. His body locks up, trembling, vision blurring.

Fuck, he needed this so much.

Mydei doesn’t stop until he whines again from over-sensitivity, praising him, “You’ve been so good,” and Phainon reels through the post-orgasmic daze, eager for the promised reward.

A reward way better than he expected.

Mydei grabs one of his wrists, guides it between them, and shoves it into his unzipped jeans— straight into the soaked heat of his pussy. He groans as Phainon's fingers slide against his engorged clit, then past the sensitive nub and between his folds.

Phainon is pretty sure his orgasm killed him and he’s in heaven.

The blonde cowboy’s cunt feels so tight, so hot, and two of his fingers slip in so easily with how wet Mydei is. He never… He doesn’t even know what to think. All he can do is feel Mydei’s walls clamp down around the digits, feel the large clit rub against his palm, and watch the attractive blonde nearing his own completion.

He doesn’t know how long it takes, all Phainon knows is that he can hear the wet sounds of his fingers inside the man’s pussy, knows his palm is drenched, and Mydei loves it when he curls his fingers, based on the moans he breathes down his ear.

“Phainon, so good, coming—”

That’s all the warning he gets. Above him, Mydei stiffens and bites down on his knuckle, his entire body shuddering as he comes, clenching on Phainon’s fingers, gushing so much down his palm and wrist and his own jeans.

Mydei lets his forehead rest on Phainon’s shoulder as he catches his breath for a minute or who-knows-how-long.

Then, he stands up slowly, takes Phainon’s drenched hand out of his jeans and zips them as if nothing happened. Once done, he looks down, eyes

Phainon’s disheveled state with a proud smile, and reaches into his pocket.

Phainon watches him, still half focused, still processing what just happened, mind floating in post orgasmic daze as a piece of paper is shoved against his chest and Mydei is leaning close again, whispering against his lips, “Call me, I’ll show you how good I can really ride.”

The next thing he registers is the bathroom stall opening and closing again, and Mydei is gone. He's left alone, sitting on a closed toilet lid with his cock softening in the mess he made inside his ruined underwear, one hand still wet with slick he can’t help but bring to his face and taste.

He never denied being a little perverted.

Phainon stays inside the stall for another long minute, staring at the closed door dreamily, then down at the note in his hand.

Oh, he’s absolutely calling this man.
