The Lance of Fury has Uses Beyond Strife

by KittensMittens

Summary

The problem with Mydei being well-endowed was that it was making Phainon into a regular at Hyacine's clinic, with unsavoury conclusions-

> “Hyacine thinks…” Mydei grits out, “That I do not know how to have sex with men.”

-and unsavoury consequences for their relationship.

> “You…you really won’t have sex with me anymore?”
> Mydei sighs, dragging his hand over his face.
> “To be specific, anything that involves sticking my dick inside your ass is now out of the question.”

But Phainon knows a solution for it.

> “How big are you in your titan form, Mydeimos?”
> “No.” Mydei immediately slams.
> “Hear me out.”
> “Fuck. No.”

And that is to practice with a bigger one.

“So, Phainon.” Hyacine drags a chair to sit beside him with the theatrical flourish of someone showing up for afternoon tea and honeycakes. And not non-consensual medical intervention, “Lady Aglaea has been telling me you are down with a simple back pain. Again.”

Her smile is so aggressively bright it makes spots dance in Phainon’s vision and mildly hallucinate a bunch of clouds and galloping unicorns orbit around her ponytails.

“…Yes.” he helplessly coughs.

In a sense, Phainon had written his own tragedy here.

It came from his fundamental misunderstanding of Chrysos Heirs politics. Simply texting the Goldweaver about being ‘unavailable due to a simple back pain’ and casually insisting he did not need any medical attention did not mean she wouldn’t tell Hyacine about it.

And she did.

Because Aglaea fundamentally never bought Phainon’s bullshit about ‘being fine’ – everyone saw it as the equivalent of putting a chimera-themed bandaid over a severed limb in his case, especially after the memories and cosmic trauma of thirty-three million Eternal Recurrences were hammered into them.

Even if Phainon was telling the truth.

Well, in this case he partly wasn’t which doesn’t really help this testimony but it is the sentiment that fundamentally mattered here.

Fundamentals, fundamentals and fucking fundamentals.

And this was why Phainon was where he was then; in bed, shirtless, with a heat pack sitting on the narrow of his back. And if his pride hadn't taken enough of a hit from just that alone, having Little Ica curl up on his pillow and give some comforting 'doot doots' like he was some child getting vaccinated was just obliterating it.

And Hyacine naturally smiles at that scene, like a rainbow with a medical license, like she didn't perfectly know what she was doing.

"And this," she continues, scribbling something in her little pink and teal and pastel purple notebook with an unsettling peephole photograph of Little Ica pasted in the center of the cover, "-makes it your fifth? Fifth incident this month, yes?"

"…Yes."

"Which brings us to a grand total of twelve instances of simple back pain from you in…three months." Hyacine nods, her lower lip jutting out as she taps the corner of the page with her pen, "You seem to be having them more frequently these days, Snowy."

"Aha – it might seem like that, Lady Hyacine, but I assure you, this is just an isolated case like the previous ones."

"I know. You hurt your back." She tilts her head, tapping her chin in mock thought. "Should I take that to mean you have been doing something reckless again? I could swear this all started about three months ago, conveniently lining up with your – uh, sparring matches with Mydei becoming so intense!"

"No! This time it was just-" Phainon scrambles to form an excuse-

“Mhm.” Hyacine interrupts, scribbling something dramatically in her notebook. “‘Patient denies reckless activity.’ Duly noted.” She beams down at him.

“Haha, yes – it was just a cart accident this time. Nothing major, just one of the handlebars…slammed into my back too hard.”

“I see.” Hyacine pokes at his lower back-

“OW -!”

-and Phainon nearly jumps and launches himself through the roof.

“I don’t observe any bruising that would match a handlebar. Strange.”

“Well.” Phainon clears his throat and looks away, burying his burning face into the pillow, “A warrior like me doesn’t bruise that easily!”

“Hm…there are these unusual marks at your sides, though-”

What marks?

Phainon blinks and then blinks faster, his eyes widening with each.

“-shaped like hands-”

“Oh, oh – don’t worry about that!” His exclamation goes from a wheeze to a forced laugh, “That’s from the cartdriver!”

“…What was the cartdriver doing to-”

“…Helping me to my feet after I fell.”

“I see.” He hears Hyacine scribbling something down again, “The cartdriver – did I get that right, Little Ica?”

“Doot…”

Phainon stays face-first into the pillow for a few seconds, swallows hard and then turns his head to look at her again.

Hyacine’s smile was constant and patient, like the calculated stillness of a predator.

“…Yes. In his panic , he…grabbed me a little too hard.”

“I see. Well then!” the medic pulls out two syrup candies from her medical bag, “Have one now and the other after dinner to help with the pain. I’ll also cast a healing band around your back to help the…inflammation go down faster. Soothing, cooling, lovely. Doesn’t that sound fetch , Phainon?”

“…Uh, ‘fetch’ as in like a dog?”

“‘Fetch’ as in cool!”

“…Ah. Yeah, it’s fantastic-”

“You didn’t watch that movie I recommended last week did you.”

“Uh – sorry. Was…occupied.”

“Well, now that there are these carts running into you now,” Hyacine’s smile remains eerily static as she gets to her feet, giving her skirt a little pat down, “-you’ll be flat on your back for the foreseeable future. You’ll finally have the time!”

“Definitely. Thanks…Hyacine.”

Ica flies up to her, her face still bright like crafted porcelain.

“Always happy to help!”

Phainon strides out of the sick bay with more vigour than necessary, the heat pack carefully fastened in place with the bandages beneath his shirt. He pauses when he sees that familiar head of golden right outside – Mydei leaning against a pillar with his arms crossed, waiting.

“Yeah, I don’t think she realised it.” he says the moment he draws close, tousling up his silver hair absently. Mydei raises a brow.

“At this point, I’m questioning her career as a medic if she hasn’t.”

Phainon glares at him.

“Maybe if your dick wasn’t the size of a damn greatsword , we wouldn’t be having this conversation.”

Mydei blinks slowly then takes a step closer, like a cat circling prey, “Strange. I don’t recall you having any complaints about my size last night, Deliverer.”

Phainon coughs, leaning back by instinct, “That is…besides the point.”

Mydei tilts his head, amber eyes glinting like molten gold, “You brought up my dick first – it is very much on point.” and then closes the distance between them until their noses touch, gaze roaming over the pinking shells of Phainon’s ears, “In fact – weren’t you begging for it?”

Phainon exhales through his teeth, seeing the way those cat-pupils expand at his acquiescence.

“Fine. Perhaps size isn’t the problem; you being too hard on me is.”

Mydei keeps his silence for a bit, letting the words hang like a prelude to something. And then he opens his mouth and starts repeating all the obscene things Phainon had gushed out last night.

“Mydei – De! Right…right there! Mhm, just like that! Harder – that’s not enough! You need to ruin…ruin me! M-more! Don’t stop – I can take it! ”

In an absurdly squeaky voice.

“Mhmm – fill me with your cubs- ”

Phainon’s face drains of color, “What the FUCK – I did NOT say anything about cubs-”

“Let me bear your Kremnoan legacy your Highness- ”

“YOU SON OF A-!” Phainon roars, shoving at Mydei who immediately bursts into a harsh, obnoxious laugh. He presses his face into his palm, waiting for him to shut up.

“Fine, fine.” Mydei gives an exaggerated roll of his eyes, “I’ll stop.” and then pivots, slowly turning away-

Phainon’s hand shoots out, immediately grabbing his shoulder with a wee bit more strength than intended.

“…Too much strength, Deliverer.” Mydei stares at the hand gripping his bicep.

Phainon swallows again.

“You…can’t leave me like this.”

Mydei frowns but then softens.

“Is it that bad? Need me to carry you back?”

“No! Not in…that sense.” Phainon flails around a bit mentally, and then looks down. Mydei’s attention follows.

To the tent in his pants.

“…Why.” Phainon’s voice cracks, partly from frustration, partly from growing need, “Why did you have to go and say all that?!”

Mydei keeps his eyes fixed below and then his gaze slowly fades into something blank before it flares up with-

“Awoo…!”

The afternoon sun hangs low over the skies of Okhema and its architecture. A purple chimera rolls around Mydei’s feet, playing with the lazy shadow of the prince cast upon the cobblestoned pavement.

“Hungry, are you?”

The chimera gives a greedy little croon in assent.

Mydei digs around his pockets and fishes out a pomegranate. Splitting the fruit open with a clawed finger, he sets it down on the ground and the chimera immediately pounces on it.

“Slow down.” he chides, watching the critter tearing into the fruit like it hasn’t eaten in weeks, “If you eat that fast, you won’t be able to walk straight afterwards.”

“Phainon wasn’t walking straight when he stepped inside the clinic either.” a cheery voice suddenly speaks behind him and Mydei jerks back, biting down on a curse. And then he twists around, looking at Hyacine smiling at him from behind the bench he was sitting on, arms folded behind her back, “I wonder who was responsible for that as well~”

The prince clears his throat – why was she out here instead of Phainon?

“Hello, Lady Hyacinthia. How is that clumsy Deliverer doing? He had a rather rough fall from the roof last night.”

“The roof? That is odd…” Hyacine puts on a frown and taps her finger against her cheek in confusion, “Phainon told me he slipped and fell in the baths last night!”

“…”

That hyena-for-brains didn’t even go with the story they had agreed upon beforehand?

Mydei takes a deep breath, staring at Hyacine who was grinning like someone who’s just discovered a new form of entertainment.

“Awoo…woo!”

The chimera had finished its meal and now was sauntering away. Now Mydei was left counting the seconds until he could make his exit as well.

“Where…is he right now?”

So the scoundrel left him alone on top of it. Mydei regrets taking pity on his state in the morning; he should have just left him locked up to stew in the consequences of his own unceasing demands -

“Anyway, Lord Mydei!” the medic claps her hands, her pink curls bouncing like accomplices for her performance, “Fancy having some tea with me?”

Mydei might be a blunt, no-nonsense kind of a man, but he knew how to read between the lines quite well, courtesy of Phainon.

‘No’ was not an option for her invitation.

Hyacine ushers him into a small office in the city infirmary that she used for her counselling sessions. Airy and well lit, the room was painted in soft pastels but not bright enough to irk one’s eyes. The faint aroma of baked sugar and citrus hang in the air. Shelves full of books covered two of the walls while the bare spaces were plastered with pictures – ones with her and Ica and the rest with a bunch of the Heirs.

The place looked exactly like what Hyacine would be if she was a room.

A plush sofa was tucked against one of the cozy corners beside the window, the tea table in front of it already loaded with cakes and cookies and a tea set that let out faint curls of steam. Loaded like a trap, not something thrown together at the last moment.

“Sit.” Hyacine gestures, before moving to one of the shelves.

She had clearly been planning to ambush him for a while.

How laughable, to think Mydei would fall for something so transparent. He wasn’t just Mydei of the Chrysos Heirs – he was also Mydeimos the Undying, his tales as a living terror for nations all over Amphoreus immortalised across millions of Recurrences. He was a lone lion who had decimated armies and armies all alone, a being that not a soul could hunt down unless he allowed them the grace to even think of it, a predator who knew not hunger and tempta-

“You like those honey cakes right?” Hyacine speaks suddenly, her hands briskly trailing through the volumes lining the shelves, “Fresh batch brought in only this morning from the bakery. And in the kettle there is that pomegranate tea I brewed using Lady Tribbie’s recipe! With a dash of goat milk!”

Mydei was already sitting, a cake already halfway to his mouth.

He was pouring himself his third cup of tea when Hyacine reappears, dropping a book on the table with a thud so heavy it sends cookie crumbs flying into his face like rogue shrapnel in a battlefield.

Mydei sneezes.

And then with a shake of his head, he frowns down at the book, eyes trailing over the title printed in ostentatious gold lettering across the cover:

‘Clinical Guide to Sexual Wellness: Volume 4 - Protocols for Proper Preparation, Dilatation, and Aftercare of the Human Anus’

Mydei stares at the cover.

Then looks up at Hyacine, who beams at him like she hadn’t just dropped an atrocity on his lap.

Looks down at the book again and reads the title once more. Perhaps his grasp on the Okheman alphabet was still poor despite the millions of cycles' worth of memories and perhaps the letters would rearrange themselves into something normal-

They don't.

Hyacine seats herself on the sofa in front of him, pouring herself a cup.

"…sphincter's natural resistance……process of expansion."

Pages flip.

Mydei had slumped so far into the sofa he was almost absorbed by it.

"…initial insertion…no more than……upon which further medical digits may be…"

What the fuck was a 'medical digit'???

"…insertion angle…exceed……upto a maximum threshold…"

Pages flip again.

Mydei was learning of sufferings he had never before experienced.

“Prior to…recipient…drinks at least 1.5 litres…”

More page flipping.

And Hyacine keeps droning out the lecture like she didn’t see his anguish.

“…water-based lubricant……allergies…”

Or perhaps she knew damn well.

“…breathing……rhythmic…increased relaxation…”

This had been Hyacine’s aim all along, after all.

“…aftercare…affection…warm compress…”

Mydei had written his own tragedy.

It was evening.

Phainon was sprawled like a starfish in bed staring up at the ceiling, as if Mydei would magically fall out of it and into his arms. Naturally, nothing of that sort happens.

He hadn’t seen Mydei since afternoon. Whatever task Hyacine had wanted to discuss with him clearly was keeping him too occupied to hang out.

Phainon stares at the clock. 7:37. And pouts. They would usually be soaking in the nice warm baths around this time, as they have done so billions and billions of times.

In the event that they weren’t occupied with fucking each other like bunnies.

Phainon sighs and tries to roll over, groaning as his back protests. An obvious consequence of going at it so quickly after the previous session. Even with the chimera-themed stomach warmer wrapped around his back and Hyacine’s pain-killer candy dissolving sweetly on his tongue, Phainon was sure he wouldn’t be able to walk for a good while.

He was, however, surprised that the medic hadn’t grilled him much this time and just healed him up without much fuss.

She had definitely bought the story about serenading Mydei in the baths, slipping on a rug, catching himself just in time only to step on a seal and fly towards Mydei who, in his startlement, had tossed him away by instinct, making him land on his back.

Clearly, Phainon had vastly improved in the art of bullshitting in a manner most convincing. Theatrics was certainly in his blood.

The window slams open then and Phainon yelps, nearly falling off his bed and incurring the wrath of his sore ass when he sees Mydei menacingly crawl in through the window like a feral blond racoon ready to rob a bakery.

His braid undone, eyes bloodshot – he looked like a lion starving for ages.

"No!" Phainon yells, scuttling back across the sheets like a wounded crab as golden eyes furiously snap towards him, "No more! Seriously, Mydei I won't be able to handle another round!"

"That's right, you whimpering hyena." Mydei snarls, "I won't be fucking you anymore."

Huh.

Wait that wasn't what-

Phainon pauses and frowns up at the seething prince. Then he tries to sit up – tries to, and fails miserably, flopping back to the mattress with a groan, sluggishly turning over onto his stomach. The mattress dips beside him as Mydei roughly sits near him.

“…What happened?” Phainon asks after a minute of listening to nothing but the angry tapping of his foot on the floor.

“Hyacine spoke with me.”

Phainon grins.

“Oh…she definitely came at you for mauling me like an animal last night didn’t sh-”

Mydei digs the heel of his hand into his lower back and Phainon screams, swatting at him.

“She thinks…” the prince grits out, “That I do not know how to have sex with men.”

There is a long pause. More foot tappings. Phainon is quiet until-

Until he completely loses it and he finds himself howling with laughter.

Mydei? Mydei of all people? The man who would ride him until Phainon would be crying into the pillows, who could fuck him with the promise of leaving him utterly wrecked afterwards, who could kiss him till his knees shook, could work his mouth like he wanted to swallow his soul, who would make him see stars that were nowhere to be found out in the cosmos?

That Mydei-

“You – you have to be LYING -!” He wheezes, kicking at his sheets and clutching at his ribs.

-being bad in bed? Phainon had greater chances of winning Okhema's bi-annual Fashion Fest than that.

Mydei glares down at his cackling form.

"I sat there," he hisses, "for two hours while she lectured me on a twelve-step fingering procedure-"

"TWELVE STEPS??!"

"There were diagrams -"

"Mydei stop – AHA, AH – I can't, I won't be able to -"

"She gave me HOMEWORK -"

Phainon screams.

"-on optimal penetration angles."

Phainon was quite sure there weren't any breaths left in him by then, tears streaming down his face.

"WHY DIDN'T YOU JUST SAY ANYTHING!"

Mydei just hits him with a pillow.

"What the FUCK was I even supposed to say in that situation, you scoundrel? 'Sorry to interrupt your lecture on pereneum prepping Lady Hyacinthia – it is not that I do not know how to fuck, it's just that my schlong is too big for this pathetic Deliverer to handle*.'* ???!"

Phainon nearly falls off the bed in his hysterics, kept in place only with Mydei's solid form sitting beside him like an immovable wall.

After a while, his manic laughter tapers down into choked sighs and coughs, like he had just finished a marathon run.

"Who would have thought…" Phainon breathes, wiping away his tears with his hands to blink up at Mydei still glaring daggers into him, "Mydeimos… Crown Prince of Kremnos, the Undying God King…having to do a course in ass -!"

Mydei doesn't dignify that with a reply, instead shutting his eyes and taking a series of deep breaths; something he usually did to stop himself from throttling Phainon.

"So…what are you going to do next?"

"My homework."

Phainon crumbles into another short fit of laughter.

"What I won't be doing-" Mydei snaps, his hand shooting forward to grab Phainon's chin, pinning his cackling self in place, "-is fucking you."

The grin slides off his face.

"Huh – pardon?"

"I was perfectly clear the first time when I entered the room, Deliverer."

“Wait – wait. You weren’t serious then, were you? You just said that out of anger!”

Mydei doesn’t blink.

“Look at me in the eyes, Deliverer. Do I look anything other than dead serious to you?”

“You are neither dead nor serious.”

Mydei lets go of him with a scoff.

Slowly, Phainon raises himself up on his forearms a bit, staring at his lover with wide eyes.

“You…you really won’t have sex with me anymore?”

Mydei sighs, dragging his hand over his face.

“That’s not what I meant.” his voice softens, “To be specific, anything that involves sticking my dick inside your ass is now out of the question.”

“So you want me to be fucking you only, now.”

“Yes.” Mydei turns around, cocking a brow, “You say that as if I’m suggesting something blasphemous and not what you already like anyway.”

“I – no, what I mean is, I won’t ever get to be…”

“What other option do we have?” Mydei rolls his eyes, “When one of us can't handle some cock, it's natural the other solely takes on that role.”

Phainon scowls at him.

“The hell do you mean ‘handle some cock’ – you are 13 fucking inches, Mydeimos.”

Maybe Phainon was exaggerating there a bit but he knew enough to conclude why exactly all the Strife titankin got so agitated around that man; they thought that thing in his pants was a weapon.

“Hah – I’m not that long, Deliverer. But perhaps the pitiable require reasons to cope with their inadequacies. And besides-” Mydei crosses his arms, smug, “I could handle 13 inches.”

He was just saying anything now.

“You are only saying that bullshit because you know I don’t have that many inches to prove you wrong with.”

“You have penetrated me with 13 inches before, Phainon, in case your poor excuse of a memory missed something.”

“Getting stabbed by Dawnmaker in the back doesn't count, Mydeimos. ” Phainon deadpans.

“Look, Phainon.” Mydei cups his cheek softly, pecking his nose as if he was trying to placate a fussy child, “We can't have you being bedridden each time we make love-”

“Fuck hard.” Phainon corrects.

Mydei pauses.

“Stop reading that garbage Castorice lends you.”

“Nuh-uh.”

“The fuck do you mean, ‘nuh-uh’ – I don't want you using that crass language for our acts of passion.”

“The way you express your passion to my butt is crass, Mydeimos.”

Mydei grabs a pillow and smacks him with it, muttering something about how he ‘let such an insufferable HKS court him ’.

Phainon glares at him.

“Stop being a brat, Deliverer – it is not like this is some huge loss.”

He frowns slightly and looks away, not wanting to meet Mydei’s eyes. The prince runs a gentle thumb across his jaw.

“Come now. You enjoy however I give myself to you, don’t you?”

“…I do.” Phainon admits, sulking.

“Then why have this conversation at all?”

Phainon clicks his tongue but lets the conversation go for the evening. But it all still nags him, keeping him awake at night while Mydei slept soundly in his arms.

There had to be a way to tackle this.

Several days pass.

Phainon drags his feet along the paved paths of the Garden of Life, the soles of his boots scuffing against stone with every mournful step.

The trees and shrubs gently rustle with the cool breeze, mild scents wafting around the courtyard; of berries and fruit and cups of tea held by the people taking their strolls around.

There are couples dotted around, beneath the alcoves in the corridor and near the bannisters at the edge of the garden, whispering to each other with heads bent close. He hears muted whispers and giggles, laden with affection and promise. It makes sorrow curl deep in his chest, like a lover bereaved and left with a shattered heart.

…Not that Phainon was currently bereaved or heart-broken but his current circumstances left him in pain very close to that!

Up ahead, he catches sight of two familiar silhouettes standing beneath the colossal tree whose branches shaded half the courtyard – Castorice and Caelus, deep in conversation, the Trailblazer animatedly pointing at some tiny chimera diagrams in a board in his hand.

The two turn around when Phainon draws close.

“Lord Phainon.” Castorice greets him with a soft smile while Caelus tosses the board onto the bench and wordlessly swings his arm to slap his back,

“We haven’t seen you around in a while.”

“Heard you were at Hyacine’s, last week.” Caelus grins, “Again.”

“At Hyacine’s? Are you alright – did you get injured somewhere-”

“Betting 50000 Balance Coins on it being another ‘spar’ with Mydei.”

“A spar…?” Castorice throws a confused look at the two men for a short beat.

Phainon clears his throat.

“Sex, Castorice.” Caelus had neither a filter nor any mercy.

The demigod blinks impassively.

“…Oh, oh you meant a lemon-”

“Castorice please -” Phainon groans while the Trailblazer snickers and he swats at his head, “Anyway, what were you two doing?”

Caelus points a few yards away.

A blue chimera – Bubbles was the name, Phainon recalls – was slowly trudging forward, a small sack of what seemed like rocks strapped to his back.

“…What the hell is that?”

“Training Bubbles for the upcoming ‘Golden City Chimera Derby’. Hey Castorice – we have to time his next lap.”

“On it, Caelus.”

Phainon sits on the bench and stares as Caelus starts jogging (extremely slowly) beside the chimera.

"COME ON BUBBLES !" The Trailblazer cups his hands around his mouth, "PUT YOUR BACK INTO IT! YOU NEED TO BEAT YOUR RECORD NOW!"

"Awoo…" Bubbles complains, scampering a little faster.

"THINK OF LYGUS CHASING YOU WITH THOSE CLANKING LOINS OF HIS!"

"Wooo…awooo!"

As Bubbles nears the finish line, Caelus jogs back towards the two, shaking his head. The chimera bounds past the line with one, final, laboured leap, before immediately shaking its tail and curling around for a nap.

"He isn't Antikytheran-phobic enough for that to work, is he…" Caelus sighs.

"Don't think so." Castorice looks at the timer, "He was only 0.2 seconds faster."

"Ugh."

"Pretty intense, huh." Phainon hums, staring at the board on the bench which actually had diagrams detailing a whole training regimen for the chimera.

Caelus nods, “If he manages to reach his regular sprint time while hauling the rocks, he’ll be flying in the race without them.”

“Lord Mydei was the one who suggested that idea. Since he uses the same logic with his gauntlets to condition and restrain his strength.”

“Yeah.” Phainon shudders, “His punches hurt way more without them.

~~And that also lowkey stoked his pain and strength kink but Phainon wasn’t going to bring that up here.~~

“COME ON, BUBBLES! PUMP! PUMP!” Caelus yells again, clapping his hands like a drill sergeant, “YOU WANNA BE A GALAXY RANGER! YOU WANNA LIVE A LIFE OF DANGER – okay, he’s getting up. Huh, wait-”

Bubbles slowly unfurls his tail and shrugs off the ropes around his body, before bounding towards them, hopping onto Phainon’s lap.

“Bubbles, are you getting rebellious on me, man?” Caelus squints as if the critter would give him an answer in full sentences.

“Let him be.” Phainon laughs as the chimera curls up on his thigh for a nap with a purr, “Resistance training drains you like anything. I remember what it used to be like when I started practicing the greatsword.”

“You used to use a heavier one?” Castorice tilts her head.

“Yes – so that the ones actually suited for my build became cakewalk to swing. I remember my drill instructor putting a 120 kilo one in my hands when I was barely managing the 70s.”

“Your arms must have hurt like hell afterwards.” Caelus winces, “Bet you couldn’t jerk off without crying.”

“Caelus, I understand the sentiment, but we are in the company of a lady right now.”

“It is alright, Lord Phainon. I usually tune myself out when he starts talking like this.”

“Aha, alright. Not like I did any of that stuff at that age!”

“What.” Caelus deadpans, “How are you a real person.”

Phainon blinks, “…None of us were, Caelus. We were lines of code, remember?”

“You’re telling me Lygus didn’t code ‘jerking off’ as part of your healthy teenage years? Is that it?”

“I’m sure those codes required the condition of ‘meeting Lord Mydei ’ to be activated in him.” Castorice supplies.

“Casto, what?”

Castorice coughs, “…Kindly continue.”

“…”

“Anyway, but look at me now~” Phainon decides to spare her, giving a pompous flex of his arms, “I can swing swords hundreds of meters long with one hand and cut a planet into two!”

“Yeah, okay.” Caelus grumbles, fondling his arm muscles, “That’s just the Emanator buff talking.”

“That’s fair – but Dawnmaker’s hundreds of kilos too, you know. Putting myself through the pain removed the difficulty from the ‘regular’-”

Phainon suddenly stops, something striking his mind like lightning. Like a very familiar thunderclap.

“What’s wrong, Lord Phainon?” Castorice frowns and Caelus lets go of his arm right in time to scoop Bubbles up as Phainon suddenly stands up.

“I have figured it out.” he stares up at the sky, as if the clouds themselves had parted to bless him with this epiphany.

How had Phainon not thought of it before?

“Figured out…what?” Caelus frowns while the chimera snores in his arms.

Phainon turns to face them.

“It is thanks to you two.” he pulls the flabbergasted Trailblazer into a hug, “You two are saviours. Heroes!” He moves to give Castorice one too, which she sidesteps neatly, leaving him to hug empty air.

“Uhm…I can control my curse now, but it’s still a little new…”

“Ah, shit sorry.” Phainon buffers a bit before blowing her a couple of kisses.”

The two stare as he snatches Bubbles from Caelus’ arms and smooches his cheeks as well.

“Give him a warm soak, or his little legs will hurt in the morning.” Phainon says, handing the flabbergasted chimera back before prancing away from the Garden, the buoyancy in his steps utterly at odds with the bewildered silence he leaves behind him.

Each swivel of his skillet brings another glorious crackle from the potatoes, browned to perfection in salt and butter. Mydei savours the scent with patience, waiting for that slight shift in aroma before he tosses the marinated chicken tenders to it. The pan hisses with a cloud of steam bursting upward, dousing him with mingled scents of honey and citrus.

It makes his stomach roar with the ferocity of a lion, ready to indulge in the delicious dinner he was about to serve himself. Mydei hums a tune under his breath, the ‘Kiss the King ’ apron swaying with his movements like a banner celebrating his rule over the kitchen. Nonsensical yes, but Mydei really reigned supreme in this space; the stove his throne and the skillet his sceptre, with no one to conquer-

The kitchen door suddenly slams open and the royal hymn he’d been humming dissolves into some very unroyal profanities.

Phainon, the royal consort that Mydei should honestly consider divorcing at this point, stands at the door, his hands balled into fists, his feet dramatically apart, his chest heaving with greater theatrics.

“Mydei .” he rasps.

“What.”

“I have decided.”

Mydei feels a slight headache brewing, “…Do I want to even know?”

“I have concluded that despite understanding your concerns…I do not want to give up on being dicked down by you.”

Mydei doesn’t answer. The pan sizzles ominously.

“I know losses are a constant in the Flame-Chase Journey…but this is a loss I cannot accept!”

“I hope you know, Deliverer, that right now, the only thing keeping me from hurling this skillet at your skull is the tragic fact that my dinner happens to be in it.”

“Look, I know I’m being uncooperative here-”

“When are you not, you greedy HKS?!”

“Look – I was getting screwed over and over in all those millions of Recurrences anyway!” Phainon throws his arms wide apart, “For once, I am choosing to get fucked. And if that makes me greedy, well, I have all the right to be greedy!”

Of course he had to bring up the Recurrences. This is why you don’t date 10x30 million times debate champions.

Mydei pinches the bridge of his nose.

“Look, Deliverer. We already discussed this.” he states as Phainon steps inside the kitchen.

“I know. That’s why I figured out a way to make it so that your normal size feels fine to me.”

“And what way is that?” Mydei watches Phainon sit beside the stove on the counter.

“Getting fucked by a bigger dick.”

Ah yes. Here comes the migraine. Phainon reaches for the chicken searing in the pan and yelps when Mydei bats him away.

“So your brilliant solution,” the prince growls, shutting his eyes and massaging his temples, “-is to fuck someone else who is better endowed than me – is that it?”

“What? No!” Phainon squawks, “How could you even think I would do that – I meant getting fucked by you with a larger dick.”

Mydei blinks. And then shuts his eyes. His mouth parts and then closes up. He raises his hand, his fingers twitch for a second and then drops it uselessly to his side. And then he clenches it into a fist and slowly brings it up to erratically knock it a few times against his forehead.

“You know – I’ll disregard that for a bit. You can barely handle me at my usual , what gave you the bright idea that a bigger penis will make it better for you?”

“Chimeras.”

“CHIMERAS ?!” Mydei roars.

Phainon hurriedly launches into some drawn-out explanation about the chimera named Bubbles being trained for the derby by Caelus and Castorice, his hands flying as if that could make the logic prettier.

After his little rant, he stares at Mydei, as if expecting him to look impressed.

“So it's basically the ‘get used to the worse so that the bad feels good ’ type thing.”

“…”

“I mean not that your dick feels bad – it feels amazing actually but I was saying it in a metaphoric-”

“I know my dick feels good, HKS – you make it loudly clear every damn time with the way your moans nearly shatter my eardrums.”

“Oh, ok.” Phainon clears his throat, “Anyway, so what I was trying to say was that…since your usual size leaves me in a poor shape; if I get used to a bigger one, then that becomes more adjustable?”

“I know how weighted muscle training works – I just fail to fathom how that is applicable to ass.”

“…Ass is made of muscles too, you know.”

Slowly, Mydei tilts his head to stare up at the ceiling, as if quietly wishing for something to crash through the ceiling – a bolt of lightning, a meteor, Ica. Anything that would smite them both and spare him from this conversation. The pan crackles again and he shakes it a few more times before taking it off the stove, hoping it wasn’t burnt.

And if Mydei actually went along with this inane plan, Hyacine might just skip the tutoring and have him straight up arrested.

“Where,” he exhales sharply through his nose, “-the hell are we going to find a dildo that large?”

And even if they found such a store…to be discovered making a purchase there was going to eviscerate what shoddy bits of his dignity was left after that session with Hyacine.

“Who said anything about a dildo?”

Mydei was a miniscule length away from tearing his own hair out – why could this obstinate fool not lay out his plans clearly in one go?

“What the fuck else is it going to be – your damn Dawnmaker?!”

“No.” Phainon answers, with the simplicity of solving a simple addition problem, “You.”

“How. The fuck. Am I growing. A bigger dick, Phainon of Aedes Elysiae?”

Phainon pauses, and in that recess, Mydei sees his eyes gleam with the light of a terrible idea.

Suddenly he doesn’t want to hear-

“How big are you in your titan form, Mydeimos?”

“No.” Mydei immediately slams.

“Hear me out.”

“Fuck. No.”

“Look, at least tell me if it's bigger than your human…”

Mydei stares. This entire conversation had to be one prolonged hallucination. If he put some thought to it, some of the fumes from his cooking must have messed with his brain.

“Uh…Mydei?”

“I don’t know Phainon – I don't take on that form that much and when I do, it's not like I'm bringing out my dick to see how long it can go.”

“…What do you mean ‘bringing out your dick’?”

“…My titan form…doesn’t have the penis as an external organ.”

Phainon squints slights, his blue eyes dropping downwards for a second before coming back up to his face. Then he stares at the pan of food, at the meat still gently simmering in the hot butter.

“Oh.” his ears slowly turn red while his eyes mildly glaze over, “A retractable penis…oh.”

“Why. The fuck. Are you finding that hot.”

Phainon brings a hand up to cover his mouth, “Can’t…can’t help it.”

Mydei lets out a frayed huff, “Enough, Deliverer.” He takes out a dish and starts scraping the food off the pan into it, “We are not continuing this conversation.”

He barely gets a moment of peace before Phainon slides off the counter, crowding into him like an overeager dog.

“Mydei, please I know this could work.”

Mydei tries to sidestep him but Phainon was faster; pressing his hands flat against the counter behind him, bracketing him in. He clicks his tongue and tries to look away but the annoying hyena is too close, his breath warm against his jaw, his blue eyes burning with that soft, insistent certainty – that boyish, puppyish passion that Mydei always stumbled for.

“Phainon, I know you won’t be able to handle me in my titan form.”

That soft gleam flickers into something sharper.

“I have gone through and made my way out of hell, Mydeimos!” Phainon snarls, his hand coming up to curl into a vice grip around Mydei’s arm, jolting in the reminder of how strong this man could get if he wanted to, “I have lived through eons in despair and agony, I have seen and experienced and survived and done with my own hands things that no one could fathom. I have endured the scorching pain of a billion Coreflames inside me until my very bones turned red hot from them – and you think I can’t handle some more inches?”

That would have been a rather compelling speech for Mydei to hear had not the several images of Phainon in bed, left indisposed and whining quite literally because of said inches inside, occupied his memories. All including that stupid little chimera-print stomach warmer and frequent demands for snacks and cuddles and huffing and pouting-

“Back off a bit, will you-”

But instead of retreating, Phainon only presses closer against him and Mydei draws in a sharp breath as he feels his knee push in between his thighs, slotting neatly in between. A subtle, but very much deliberate, roll of his knee into his crotch has Mydei jolt despite himself, while Phainon's face hovers over him, drinking up every single reaction of his.

“I’ve buried hope millions of times, and dug it up with my bare hands each time, Mydeimos. The indomitable human spirit rests with me and dies with me.” Phainon declares, eyes blazing but also carrying a hint of knowing, “My spirit, of all things, is the last thing you can doubt.”

The room falls into a silence far thicker than the book Mydei was supposed to go through for his homework. Another push of his knee has frustration crawling over him like static. Aggravated by the sight of Phainon's face shifting once again to accommodate that infuriating mix of smug and strategic provocation.

The bastard knew, knew that it was working – the careful ploy of combining such a ridiculously grand speech with playing outright dirty. He knew it was making Mydei sway and Mydei hated nothing more in the world right then than proving Phainon right.

But tragically for Mydeimos, the tendency of Phainon to goad and successfully drag him into any challenge with any kind of provocation was something deeply integral to their relationship.

Without warning, Mydei grabs his collar and yanks him closer until their breaths mingled and he could see the flicker of surprise across Phainon's face.

"Fine. Meet your end with fucking pride then, Deliverer."

The gilded gates of Castrum Kremnos tower over the two demigods, their freshly restored arches catching the blaze of the afternoon sun. Ivory columns gleam like waxed bone, golden engravings trailing along their lengths. Further in, lines of workers move in regimented streams, hammerings and voices and orders weaving into the rhythm of rebuilding.

Despite the several patches of scaffolding and cracked, incomplete walls that Phainon could spot in the distance, the sight still radiated majesty. Announcing the return of a kingdom clawing its way back to glory, declaring an age of splendor that had yet to be extinguished.

“Kremnos shall stand tall again…” Mydei announces in a soft voice, to no one in particular, staring up at the looming pillars with a muted melancholy, “Its restored honour shall blaze for all across Amphoreus to witness!”

“So this is where you’re going to fuck the daylights out of me, right?”

“…Deliverer, can you not – for once -”

Phainon snickers as Mydei lets out an aggrieved sigh, and leans in to peck his cheek.

“My apologies – it slipped my mind that it would be scandalous for the Crown Prince to be seen walking into the city with a boner.”

Mydei looks towards the sky, as if quietly longing for Nikador’s Blade of Fury to materialise up in the sky and strike him down.

They stop at the entrance of the Kremnos Arena. Passing through the city had not been much of a problem – several Kremnoans had stopped to give their formal salutations before pausing. Something in their Prince’s demeanour sent the message that he was there for business and sought no interruptions.

“I shall be regretting this so much.” Mydei says as he stares out into the clearing in front of them.

“Already thinking coming out here was a bad idea?”

“No.” Mydei snaps, “Entertaining you, yes. But there is no other option – it’s not like I can transform into a titan inside your damn bedroom now, can I?”

“You can, if you aren’t a coward .”

“Phainon, try rage-baiting me into making more poor decisions for my life and I will just walk out without doing a thing.”

That promptly shuts him up.

Well, the primary reason Mydei had for insisting upon doing this… experiment out here was simple: because Kremnos was one of the few places where he could order an area to get cleared out with a snap of his fingers and have no one throw any questions at him for it.

That and also because trying anything anywhere near Okhema increased the chances of Hyacine catching wind of it and apparently Mydei had been having nightmares about her ‘Ideal Thrust Rate for Newbies ’ lecture for days.

Mydei walks forward towards the arena, each step measured and deliberate while Phainon hangs back, watching him. The air around them felt heavy with the echoes of past, forgotten battles, laden with the scent of steel and blood that wasn’t there. Mydei, moving towards the centre of it all, gave the presence of a blade itself, a blade that used to hang long back over the arena. Sharp, unyielding, cutting through the silence.

The prince stops right at the centre of the arena, his back still facing him.

And then Phainon slowly starts to approach him as well, his breath stuttering with each step. The sight, the slow walk – it brings about an ache in his chest like greeting an old friend. For how many times had he witnessed this very scene before, how many times had he lived to see it? The sight of Mydei standing in that very spot, loop after loop, waiting.

Waiting for Phainon to issue that fated challenge to him. His rival. His eternal obstacle. The love of his life.

The only difference in this script being that he was going to get railed instead.

Once Phainon reaches the centre as well, a few feet away from Mydei, the demigod slowly turns to face him, his face grim.

“Well then, Deliverer. You still have time to back out of this.”

“And I don’t want to.”

Mydei tilts his head, arching a brow, “If you thought I was too big as a human…my titan form will strike fear within you.”

The sensual almost deadly edge in Mydei’s voice makes something coil deep and hot into his gut and Phainon feels his dick twitch in response.

“I cannot guarantee this will be pleasant.”

“Well…” Phainon coughs, feeling his ears burn, “You know what they say about size mattering.”

“Matters for what – your damn funeral arrangements?” Mydei barks.

“Ugh, just get on with it, Mydeimos.”

Mydei rolls his eyes before taking several steps back.

And then a blast of heat sears the air in an instant, followed by an expulsion of light. Steam rolls across the ground, swallowing them in white. Through its thick curtain, Phainon only catches glimpses; the silhouette of Mydei's rapidly changing form, his body contorting as his legs elongate into spindly titan bone, their claws skittering against the stone, a second pair of arms tearing out from beneath his limbs. From his back, he sees the shape of bony wings arching upwards, creaking with their unfolding.

The smoke peels away slowly, revealing the majestic form of the Strife Titan standing before him. Two stories tall, its spindly frame gleamed like carved ivory, claws tipped with gold and sapphire stones decorating the joints. Draped behind the skeletal form is a cloak of fine blue and gold, billowing with the winds.

This was the titan form that Phainon had seen and battled countless times.

The only difference was that from this titan's chest, emerged Mydei's bare body, as if the titan was his throne, while his waist gave way to the titan's ivory make. His sunset hair flowed long and untamed over his back and shoulders, while his scarlet tattoos gleamed with power over his naked torso. His human arm bore the massive golden lance that Nikador had used to wreak havoc across Amphoreus in the centuries past.

Phainon feels his jaw go slack; he has seen this form so many times and it never stopped being just as beautiful a sight and now it retained Mydei's head and torso on top of it.

The prince's eyes were still shut, as if going through the vestiges of his concentration before his eyes snapped open, shining with a godly gold instead of the soft amber that Phainon was used to. His gaze flicks downwards, to the demigod who stood before him as a human so small in comparison. And then he lets go of the Lance, which immediately dissipates into a shimmer of golden flakes, waiting to be summoned when the time comes.

“Close your mouth, Deliverer?” Mydei orders, his voice just as deep as usual but with a faint echo rippling through it. Or maybe Phainon’s state of arousal was giving him auditory hallucinations.

Phainon snaps his mouth shut and accidentally bites his tongue, “Ack-! Yea…yes.” And then his mouth falls open again, a thin line of blood trickling out this time.

“…I see that all reason has left you.”

Quietly, Phainon steps closer, setting the rucksack slung over his shoulder down on the ground. His hand reaches out to drag itself down the length of one of the ivory legs. The surface was cool but if he pressed a little harder, he could feel heat thrumming beneath.

Of course, then the goblin part of his brain takes over and his leg sweeps out and hits the ‘ankle’, wondering if that would topple him over.

Mydei doesn’t even budge.

“Did you just try to knock me off my feet, Deliverer?”

“Just taking revenge for how…your beauty knocks me off my feet, Mydeimos.” Phainon hurriedly covers.

Mydei stares down at him, unimpressed.

Phainon winks.

The prince sighs but Phainon could swear his ears were turning red.

“Well then, Deliverer. Get yourself ready.”

“Are you…asking me to do all the work?”

“Tch – the least you could do is strip off your clothes.”

“…”

Phainon stares at the spindly pair of titan arms emerging from beneath his ribs, long enough to reach the ground, and then Mydei’s normal, human, muscled arms.

“You have four arms. You can do it for me.”

Mydei sighs and then, without warning, his titan hands scoop Phainon clean off the ground. The sudden lift knocks the air out of his lungs. His sights fall upon the hands around his waist – in proportion to the rest of his body, they looked thin and weak, but were actually large and long enough to completely encircle his waist.

The sheer difference here alone makes Phainon’s pulse unreasonably skip; those hands could clearly wring steel like a wet rag and he was finding that so unbelievably hot -

“Deliverer.” Mydei calls out to him, and Phainon finally looks at the man himself, realising they were at eye-level.

“Hi there.” he greets as he is pulled closer.

Mydei doesn’t humour him with words; he lets their lips crash together into a kiss and Phainon groans, his hands finding purchase on the firm muscles of his shoulders. Their lips slide against each other languidly, wet and melting, every motion growing heavier with heat. Meanwhile, he feels Mydei’s human hands paw at his clothes, the titan ones locking him firmly in place.

His coat slips off him first, and it takes a while for Phainon to hear the thud of it falling to the ground, jolting him into realising the drop if Mydei were to let go of him. The prince’s tongue pushes inside his mouth then and he moans and the sheer realisation that he had to stay put and let the man take him as he pleased, that he had no escape in this grasp, has his dick straining against his pants.

“Mydei, wait – ah !” Mydei pulls away from his mouth to immediately latch onto the side of his throat. His lips scorch; his teeth scrape dangerously close to breaking skin, tracing this threat along his pulse. Phainon’s nails dig into his shoulders as he hears the clinks of his belts undone and tossed uselessly to the ground.

Titan hands manipulate him with terrifying ease, turning him this way and that like he was but a mere doll at their mercy as he is stripped of each article of clothing. His boots and undershirt and pants are all tossed away until Phainon finds himself completely naked save for his boxers.

For a brief moment, Mydei cradles him close, like he was something fragile in his hands, and not an indomitable being that had endured and braved the wrath of billions of Coreflames in his body. And then his mouth is back on his neck, trailing wet, fevered kisses down its length.

Phainon arches as he feels teeth sink in and suckle with a rhythm threading delicacy with the threat of violence. His hands bury themselves into Mydei’s soft gold hair and twist into it, pushing him further against him, in tandem with each harsh suck.

Mydei lets go with a pop, his lips glistening, the molten gold in his gaze partially softening into the old amber. There is a smug glint in it, as he takes a moment to undeniably admire the mark he had left before moving onto the next one.

Phainon's breaths grow more ragged with each mark left. When his clothes had still been on, they had served as a buffer – a thin, merciful buffer between him and whatever the hell those titan hands counted as. Now he got to feel them fully, skin-to-bone, feel the hardness of those cold fingers, the way they almost dug into his flesh like unforgiving stone. It paints a contrast absolutely maddening with Mydei's softer hands that were roaming over his body. The contrast of that warm mouth on his throat, gentle fingertips toying with his nipples, while the stony fingers scrape his ribs like they were strumming a harp alone nearly shorts out Phainon's brain.

"Conquer this world…" Mydei mutters, his mouth travelling down to his collarbone, licking at the hickey he had freshly left, "…or be conquered by me."

"How…" Phainon blinks, in a haze from the platter of sensations assaulting him, his thighs shuddering as his dick feels the cold patch of precum staining his boxers, "How is that relevant…?"

It was a line Mydei had proclaimed in several of their battles in this very arena, in many of those loops.

"Hmph. There is no world left for you to 'conquer ' anymore, is there, Deliverer?" his hot mouth glides over a pectoral while his thumb presses the other nipple flat in circular motions, "Nor have I brought this form out for you to wage battle against. And the Lance of Fury will no longer move to strike you."

Phainon keens as he pinches a nipple, while he feels clawed fingers dig into the waistband of his boxers, tugging them off, squirming when the fabric scrapes against his sensitive, neglected cock.

“So all that is left for you…” Mydei conquers, his lips reaching an areola, “-is to leave yourself at my mercy. To be conquered by me.”

And then his mouth closes over his nipple, right as his titan hands practically rip his underwear off. The sudden clash – of the wet heat engulfing the swollen nipple and the cold rush of air biting at his now-bared cock – wrenches a broken gasp out of Phaino’s throat, a choked fuck hissed under his breath.

Phainon feels like nothing but a doll draped over the prince’s many limbs, to be held limply in his grasp and played with as the man pleased. Mydei now holds him up with his human hands, pressing them together chest to back, his hot mouth busy lathering kisses over his neck and shoulders, humming in tandem to the weak moans Phainon lets out. Meanwhile, one titan hand works his cock, the other toys with his nipple, the careful, human touches from before replaced by warmed yet harsh stone. The claw presses into his nipple right in cue with a harsh pump and Phainon cries; the touches are not harsh enough to hurt, but enough to threaten him with it.

“I shall fuck you open with my fingers first.” Mydei explains, tongue dragging slowly over his racing pulse, canines grazing just enough to warn. He gives his waist a light squeeze for emphasis, “As I always do. As you always love, don’t you, Deliverer?”

“Y…yes.”

Another rough stroke and Phainon keens.

“And then,” he feels the harsh gleam of teeth at his neck, revealed from the pull of Mydei’s grin, “-with these.”

The titan fingers playing with his nipple suddenly let go, lifting themselves to pause before his face. Phainon blinked, mouth opening, then closing dumbly, before tentatively running one fingertip along a single claw. Easily at least as thick as three of his fingers, gleaming bone and gold and hot under his touch in a way that made his stomach lurch.

“Any questions?”

Oh he had questions. A whole fucking scroll’s worth of questions; most of them starting with how the hell was this going to go inside him, ending with how many did Mydei plan to torment him with.

Phainon feels his gut flip between dread and desire, like a coin tossed with ease between Cipher’s fingertips. And whatever that razor’s edge in Mydei's voice was, it sent sparks tearing down his spine, pooling molten in his cock-

“Having second thoughts, Deliverer? Mydei purrs, with an amused, almost mocking lilt in his voice as titan fingers pinch his cock like a cherry stem, making his climax slam through him so humiliatingly fast it completes the prince’s insult for him.

Phainon feels fingers softly card through his sweaty hair, the flashes in his vision slowly dissipating as the high of his orgasm tapers. He whines and feels lips press against his forehead. Long, golden tresses fall over his bare shoulders and Phainon idly combs his hand through them, so silky for a form that was meant to be a titan’s. The hair shifts, lips brush against his jaw and Phainon traces the shape of him, the shoulders, the neck, the hair long enough to cloak them both. If Mydei was some sea kraken surfacing exactly in this fashion, Phainon would readily become his first hapless victim in 0.033 seconds.

“My fingers might feel a lot right now,” Mydei’s voice seems to echo again, even though his mouth was grazing his cheek then, “-but after I unsheath myself, you shall find them a kinder option.”

Phainon lets out a puff of breath, the haze fading with his amusement.

Mydei narrows his eyes.

“And what is so funny?

Phainon laughs again and hisses when Mydei bites his jaw, “You said, ‘unsheath ’ ha, what the hell Mydeimos.”

The prince huffs and bites his jaw again. Phainon grabs his face and pulls him into a kiss. The taste of heat, iron, and the faint sweetness of pomegranate linger on his tongue and golden lashing tickle his eyelids and Mydei’s eyes flutter shut.

“You really put a lot of thought into this, huh.” Phainon pants as the kiss breaks.

“Since I have to deal with your incessant, thoughtless demands, thinking becomes a necessity.”

“Uh-huh, I guess all the homework Hyacine put you through for ass fingering is doing the talking here.”

“Shut up.”

“Bet you jotted stuff down in colourful sticky notes, wrote all those headings for different kinds of buttholes in cursive – of course, assuming you can write-”

“Phainon.”

“And of course, you definitely underlined them with that favourite pink highlighter you like-”

“Fuck you, Deliverer.” Mydei barks, cuffing him upside the head and Phainon throws his head back to laugh, pulling the prince closer and peppering his angry face with kisses.

“That is the entire point of what we’re doing right now, isn't it?”

“Can’t you just get it with those long arms of yours.” Phainon grumbles, pawing into the satchel like a raccoon in a trashcan. It felt slightly offensive to be dangled over it by Mydei’s titan arms like he was fish bait.

“Those bottles are too small and delicate to be handled by these hands.” And it doesn’t help that Mydei sounded extremely entertained by the setup and was definitely getting a full view of his ass in that position, “If they all accidentally break all over the place, I’m not really sure if you’d enjoy all that is to come with an unlubed asshole.”

“You know there is this thing called ‘taking a raincheck ’, right.”

“You wouldn’t need to take one if you weren’t a coward.” Mydei returns because obviously he was not the kind to let past insults left unavenged.

By the time Mydei was pumping three fingers inside him, Phainon was already growing impatient, his body still trembling with the aftershocks of the third orgasm. The edge for the next was already developing, alongside the gnawing need for more. On top of the mellow ache that had started to bloom all over from being suspended up in the air.

“Just…get on with it, Mydei.” Phainon gasps as his fingers graze his prostate again. The prince sighs with his demands and has him fetch the second bottle of lube.

“Put your arms around my shoulders.” Mydei instructs after Phainon pours the lube over the ivory fingers. His warm hands were braced beneath his thighs, holding him aloft and spreading him wider.

The stretch of the titan finger wasn’t what caught him, for it is only slightly slimmer than the three fingers that had been opening him before. It is the rigidity of it, the unyielding make of it that doesn’t ease even when Mydei had warmed up the digit before.

“Breathe, Deliverer.” the prince hisses.

“Gosh Mydei, I know how to take things up my ass-”

“And yet you’re tensing around it – my claw could slice you open if you clench so hard you HKS.”

“…Titans why the fuck am I finding that hot – ah!”

“There is something deeply wrong with you.”

But when the solid finger brushes against his prostate, Phainon feels the tension in his body melt away like wax, making him sag against Mydei chest as the raw buzz of pleasure takes over his senses.

The second finger is…definitely a challenge. Phainon bites into Mydei's shoulders as he pushes in bit by bit, the first finger massaging his rim in a circulatory motion, coaxing him to accommodate the second. But it is still fine. The stretch is there, but it is still manageable. Barely. The clawed ends are the challenge and it felt like a dull scratch each time they scraped against his walls. Mydei miraculously had enough finesse for it to not go beyond that, because Phainon knew they could shred him apart just as easily.

The idea that they could…sends a worrying amount of heat to his cock.

By the time Mydei pushes in the third, Phainon is practically gone. His prostate has been so thoroughly abused by the first two until he could no longer tell if there was any pause between each orgasm, if it ever even stopped. His body becomes nothing but putty in Mydei’s arms, the pain blurring into sweetness, the burn into pleasure.

“Good boy.” Mydei spills into his ear as Phainon cums again, just from the praise alone, “You are doing so, so well, my sweetheart.”

Those massive fingers stretch him in ways that felt almost impossible. Phainon was sure no human body could be opened that wide without being split apart but his does and by the Titans it is so obscene. The sounds are obscene, the squelches of fingers pumping in without pause is obscene, the things that spill ceaselessly from his lips are obscene and the obscenity is his bliss.

He no longer knows how many orgasms Mydei has wrung out of him; his cock occasionally and pitifully lets out a sorry spritz of clear fluid and at other times he is just cumming dry. At one point, Phainon is sure the prince could just crawl inside him whole and it would all feel the same, he would still be lost in this bliss, in this conquest.

Phainon's eyes flutter open when he feels the fingers gently slide out, immediately feeling the loss of their weight. Damning hell they had been heavy inside him and he hadn't even fully realised it. His throat feels parched and his rim twitches with Mydei's hand still there, massaging it in slow circles.

Phainon blinks up towards his lover, whose golden eyes, softer and a little unfocused, were fixed on his face, as if indulging in every breath, every shift in his expression that he had to offer. Warm kisses follow then, on his cheek, his forehead, his wet hair, his nose, his eyelids and his slack mouth; anywhere Mydei could reach.

"Can you keep going, Deliverer?" he whispers against his skin, kissing him more while he waits.

"Yeah…yes, I think?" Phainon shivers a little, caught somewhere between being boneless and being brought back into a state more solid than the minutes before.

"…I do feel you would be saying that even if you cannot."

"Ugh, Mydei…" he complains, nuzzling his face into the crook of Mydei's neck, pressing slow, lazy kisses against the heated skin, drawing out a shudder from the prince, "I may have given you sufficient reason to doubt my ability to judge my own limits-"

"Yes. That is precisely the reason why we are here in the first place, genius."

“Stop interrupting me, Mydeimos.”

Mydei responds by flicking his finger at his sensitive rim and Phainon keens, glaring up at him.

“Fine.” the prince grumbles in acquiescence, “You are grown. I trust you enough to know you will say something if it gets unpleasant enough to not be worth it anymore.”

“You’ll always be worth it.” Phainon purrs against his jaw, giving it a lick and Mydei sighs, his ears a such a delightful shade of red that Phainon can’t resist leaning in to bite at the shell.

“Tch. It is yet to soon for you to bring out that fucked-out affectionate phase towards me, puppy.”

“Then you should be getting to work.” he answers brightly.

Mydei adjusts his grip on him and Phainon’s balance falters a little and by instinct, his hand flies out to grab the closest thing next to him.

Whatever he grabbed makes an odd look flash across the blond’s face; his cheeks were already red enough by then and now a choked gasp tears out of his lips.

Phainon frowns, turning his head to see what exactly he had just grabbed. A staff. Or at least, it looked like one. A surface of pale ivory, with delicate, very very slightly raised gold engravings spiraling down its length. The Strife Titan was a creature of many, spindly growths and blades and he had probably grabbed onto one of its sheathed weapons.

“Wow.” Phainon huffs, straightening up a bit, letting go of the staff, “You have another lance in this form?”

Mydei blinks, a little too erratically, his face flushed and pretty, “What lance.”

Phainon weakly lifts his hand to point down at it. He bends slightly to reach for the tip again – only this time, he doesn’t have to bend at all. The staff was already pushing into his palm…as if it had grown in length or something. He furrows his brows as his hand brushes against the tip. Warm. Not cold or metallic like he’d expect a weapon to be.

Another strangled gasp from Mydei interrupts his musings but Phainon ignores it.

“A little blunt for your Lance of Fury though, isn’t it.” Phainon dazedly strokes the tip that was as almost as thick as his palm, “What are you bringing this out for though?”

“…”

Mydei is quiet. Or rather, looks like he is trying to be quiet.

“What?” Phainon chuckles, “Don’t tell me you want to go for a spar as part of the foreplay at this point?”

“Phainon.” Mydei says softly, “That is not the Lance of Fury.”

“…”

Phainon gives the tip another squeeze and sure thing, there is that same reaction from him.

No.

No way.

“That…that is not-” Phainon squawks, “There is no way that is your titan dick.”

“It is.”

The tip pushes further into his arms and Phainon nearly yelps.

“Why – WHY IS IT GROWING?!”

“Only half of it is out right now.” Mydei grits.

Phainon laughs, albeit nervously, “Okay, no. Considering your grasp on math I’m going to be taking that with a massive grain of salt-”

“You can assess my math once it is inside you, Deliverer.”

And his laugh dies, strangled into silence.

“That is not going inside me.”

Mydei’s expression barely shifts but his mouth lightly curls up at the corner, “Don’t worry, I’ll make it fit.”

“Mydei it’s longer than my thigh.”

Phainon finds himself lifted up again, titan hands cupping the back of his thighs.

“And yet-” something flicks at his penis, pulling a sharp gasp from him. He hadn’t even realised he had gotten erect again, “-you are back up again.”

Phainon doesn’t answer, swallowing as-

“You can admit it, Deliverer.”

-Mydei leans in to pepper his face with kisses.

“You imagined it, did you not?”

And his claws lightly dig into the flesh of his thighs.

“You imagined me inside you.”

He fights to stay quiet but his face burns.

“Stretching you further open.”

But he also knows his abashment wasn’t missed by Mydei, his golden lion eyes tracking every hint of it on his face.

“Reaching parts of you that no one – not even yourself, can reach.”

Phainon buries his face into Mydei’s neck, letting out a shaky breath.

Because damning it all to hell – yes, he did. It felt like signing his own death certificate, but Kephale’s cracked boobs’ sakes, he was already imagining that impossible thing sliding into him, inch by inch, stretching him beyond reason.

Phainon pours one entire vial of lube over the shaft, swallows when he realises it just wasn't enough.

"We might need another one." Mydei chuckles. And damn this man – after all the reprimands about Phainon's reckless demands, this bastard was the one enjoying it all the most. Like a cat playing with its catch that had no hope of escape. But wordlessly, Phainon empties another bottle because as much as his pride was pricked, reason told him to shut up and listen. It takes him both his hands to patiently and slowly lather the fluid over his length.

At least the sight of Mydei flushed and panting at the ministrations helps his bruised ego a bit.

Mydei's hands still on his thighs, he slowly lowers Phainon down to his cock, pausing right when the tip presses against his hole. His breath stutters – it feels so warm and wet and big and he is spread so wide in preparation to take it that it makes a small whine escape his lips.

"Well, Deliverer?" Mydei smirks, "Not chickening out already, are you?"

"I thought there wasn't a word for that phrase in your dictionary, asshole?"

Mydei's smile only grows wider and Phainon feels a vein pop near his head. This was the only man on Amphoreus who could infuriate and arouse him at the same time. He leans in and takes a good chomp at his cheek.

"Either get on with it-" he whispers as the prince swears, "-or I'll assume you're projecting your cowardice onto me."

"Poor choice for your last words, Deliverer." Mydei gives before he pushes in.

Phainon’s mouth falls open but nothing comes out. Not a moan, not a scream; just silent shock punched out of him from the intrusion. Mydei captures his lips with his own almost immediately and his tongue fills his mouth, as if to swallow anything that could potentially come out of them. But Phainon’s eyes remain open, if only to remain fixed on Mydei’s own amber gaze that was greedily drinking in any sight he had to offer.

The stretch is unreal. Phainon wasn’t fully breathing anymore with each bit that pushes in, his breaths coming out as short, erratic pants. Mydei replies to that with slow, placating kisses across his lips and jaw, muted whispers of something Phainon can’t understand, but he does not stop pushing in, even if he takes him slowly and patiently but inevitably.

The golden ridges etched along that length brush against his already impossibly stretched and sensitive rim, each scrape setting his nerves ablaze. A sensation most unrelenting, forcing him to be so conscious of every inch that is pushed in and it makes Phainon let out a broken moan, a sob dragging out of his throat as he clings tighter to Mydei and bites into his shoulder.

Every fragment of his consciousness had condensed down to one spot – between his legs. It burns, it isn't kind, it is teetering on the verge of too much and Phainon gasps out strangled, ragged things. Mydei is whispering something in his ears, something to soothe him and his voice is shaking but Phainon barely catches the words, too consumed by the breach.

And with each passing moment, there is one sensation that makes itself known more and more – alien, overwhelming, and yet undeniable. A fullness that wasn’t exactly like the kind that he had gotten used to with Mydei’s usual size. The feeling of being filled utterly to the brim and believing there was no more space left in him yet there was. It was the feeling of passively thinking that’s it, that’s the limit, there’s no way I can fit anymore and Mydei proving him catastrophically wrong by sliding in deeper regardless

Phainon gasps, feeling that visceral shift deep inside his belly as Mydei takes more of him – invades him, conquers him.

And then a perturbed look flashes across the prince's face.

"Deliverer…your body…" Mydei begins and Phainon blinks dazedly, wondering what had happened. He lets out a low whine, his body feeling too occupied to even form words anymore. His stomach shifts again when he pushes in a bit more before abruptly stopping.

"Huh…?" Phainon blinks dazedly, "De…? Mydei? Mydeimos?"

"I…" For the first time, the prince looked unsettled , his usual regal composure cracked, "I went in…further in than I intended to. I think."

Phainon feels his eyes twitch, his overwhelmed senses briefly interrupted by…whatever the fuck Mydei had just said.

"The hell does that mean – did you stab through my fucking guts or something?"

"No, you're not bleeding for that. There's just…space."

Phainon sucks in a breath – tries to, because even that felt near impossible, like his body no longer had room to even accommodate air with the sheer mass inside him. His abused rim still buzzed with sharp, sensitive pleasure. And there is the sheer ache but it isn't debilitating, not unbearable as logic should have dictated. Phainon coughs and once again, something shifts. It feels kind of slimy, kind of ticklish. He couldn't properly label what it was. Closest he could say was that something was caressing his ribs. From the inside.

And it dawns, partially, incredulously in a manner that Phainon wasn't even sure if he was right.

But it was the only logical explanation – the least nonsensical reason out of anything else.

He doesn't know if that should leave him horrified or bewildered.

Perhaps it was a bit of both. And against all better judgment, he's…kind of impressed.

It was his body. His body that changed to let Mydei in.

"I think…" he wheezes while Mydei's eyes flick back towards him, "My body…used its powers as a demigod."

Mydei stares at him blankly.

"As a demigod."

"You know." Another deep breath. It was getting easier now, Phainon realises, "Worldbearing…Kephale's design."

The silence stretches. Mydei's brows knit together, his eyes bouncing around as if recalculating something – not that Mydei knew enough math to calculate-

"…Are you-" He speaks, slowly, "-insinuating that 'Worldbearing ' also encompasses 'bearing a penis inside '?"

Phainon's brain blanks for a bit, "What – Mydei, that's not what I-"

"Are you saying Kephale is also the patron titan for the phallically impaled, Deliverer?"

"…What the fuck, Mydeimos."

“What the hell are you saying then, Phainon?!” Mydei almost moves his arms to throw them up dramatically before he remembers they were the ones keeping Phainon propped up. Other than his dick.

“I meant Kephale’s the titan who ‘designed ’ humans, isn’t it?” Phainon groans, “As their demigod…it isn’t unrealistic to believe I have some… dominion over that as well, right?”

“My body…adjusted for you – fuck I didn’t know I could even do that.”

Mydei continued staring at him like he was still waiting for a punchline.

“…So you are telling me…” He speaks after a prolonged phase of jaw-shifting-around-to-find-the-words, “-that you rearranged the fucking structure of your body for me.”

“I…yes, it’s a theory – augh !” Phainon gasps as Mydei slightly jolts, the tip brushing against his prostate. No, it wasn’t simply brushing against it; it was camping against it. Which meant even the tiniest of movements from Mydei, even if it was something as simple as an inhale, was making him see stars.

Meanwhile, Mydei’s shoulders sink, his head drooping downward until Phainon can no longer see his eyes, just golden hair curtaining it.

“I…I didn’t do it on purpose – it was…instinct.”

Mydei lets out a whistling exhale.

“Deliverer. You are going to be the death of me.”

Phainon had the chance to make a particularly heinous joke involving Dawnmaker and a certain vertebra. But before he could do that, he feels Mydei's hands lift him up, off his cock and before he could even hiss from that, the prince pushes him back down in one fell swoop, making him throw his head back as a silent scream tears out from his throat.

And Mydei doesn't let up after that. Again and again, he lifts Phainon up by the hips before pulling him down again, his hips surging upward to meet the fall with brutal precision. Shattering the world into a blur of relentless movement and heat, ceaseless pleasure hammering through every nerve until Phainon's vision whites-out in bursts. He clings to Mydei like a drowning man, nails clawing at his shoulders, his head tipping back with helpless sounds spilling from his throat with every impact.

"My – Mydei , fuck-ah gods, fuck – you are ah -!" his words break into half gasps, half sobs. He feels impossibly packed, his insides accommodating that merciless stretch, allowing themselves to be taken and rearranged. It should have hurt, it should have been too much – and it is too much , but all it brings him is bliss and nothing else.

"Made for this…" Mydei chants in his ears, his own breaths wrecked and trembling, his control fraying, "You were made for me , Deliverer – made to take all of me! Hah – the demigod of Worldbearing…made to let the demigod of Strife inside them!"

Phainon whimpers at another upward thrust, his whole body forced to move along with each, the sparks of pain from before completely dulled and overridden by bliss. His throat had already started to turn raw, his moans reduced to broken croaks until at last, his climax crashes over him so hard Phainon nearly passes out.

Mydei holds him tight for several, heady seconds while Phainon just spills a low, constant whine into his shoulders like a broken flute. His titan hands lightly scratch his thighs, slowly drawing him away from the daze.

Then quietly, clearly pleased-

“So your body learns, like a green warrior thrown into the lion cage with just a knife in his hands…”

“…Do you have to bring out those spartan gladiator analogies even for taking dick up the ass?”

Mydei scoffs, and Phainon grunts as he is pulled off his cock and deftly turned around until his back is pressing against his chest, “There is no word for ‘spartan ’ in the Kremnoan-”

“Mydei bring up that damn dictionary again and I’ll break-”

Phainon gasps when the thick tip nudges into him again before Mydei sinks into him from behind. The second round is mercilessly smoother and faster. Every thrust lands like Mydei had mapped him out and was now playing him with intent; each one fluid and precise, each snap of his hips coaxing something helpless from Phainon’s throat. His ears ring, filled with the sound of his own broken gasps mingling with Mydei’s groans and praise, his skin prickles everywhere, as if lathered with waves of fire. The bites all over him sting, salt lingers on his bitten lips, his vision flashes with gold and white every time Mydei drives into him.

Phainon faces forward this time and his hands weakly flail, desperately wanting something to grab onto. From his blurry vision, he sees Mydei’s golden hair cascade down his own shoulders and without much thought, grabs onto them and tugs.

Mydei swears, responding with a thrust that nearly has him pass out. Then Phainon feels his hands roughly grabbed and pinned behind his back, held by one titan hand.

Phainon sees the change in his stomach this time – the bulge that disappears each time Mydei pulls out and reappears when he pushes back in. The pace and relentlessness of it – even the sight of it – has pleasure building up too fast, his senses frying until he can no longer last and release rips through him embarrassingly quick, crashing through him before he can even ground himself.

Phainon slumps forward, but strong hands hold him close, pinning him to Mydei's chest while he keeps pumping, his mouth wet and hot against the shell of his ears as he nibbles him like a cat with a new chew toy.

"Wha – what the fuck was that-!"

"What's wrong, Deliverer?" Mydei murmurs in his ears,his voice low and velvet, after the fourth orgasm leaves Phainon unable to string anything coherent, "You seem quiet."

"Too…too-"

Mydei grinds against him, pinning his tip against his prostate, "Couldn't catch that."

"Too much…it is so much – I-I can't anymo-"

"What was that?" Mydei's teeth drag along his nape, "Does my memory betray me, or do I recall someone saying something to me about the 'indomitable human spirit '?"

"Fuck…you." Phainon croaks, even though he finds himself clenching harder around his cock at that. There is part of his consciousness that feels like he must swim, or be swept away in the torrents, but his hands remain tied behind, anchored to the beast who was determined to have his fill.

Mydei only laughs at him for that – a rich, beautiful, devastating voice that is to hear – and then showers more kisses around his shoulders, nibbling at the reddened skin, licking the golden blood off places where his teeth had sunk in too deep.

“Oh, Deliverer. Were you not the one who suggested this yourself?” He punctuates the sentence with a thrust and Phainon sobs, “To have you adjust for me…you will have to be trained?”

And then Mydei bites down on him and cums, hot and sudden, inside him. Endless and scorching, more and more until there truly was no room. Phainon’s brain tells him nothing, whether to breath or cry, or wonder if he was hallucinating the swell of his stomach from Mydei filling him whole, his entire body shivering at the obscene fullness.

Time blurs. Phainon feels thin trails of cum slip through between his rim and Mydei’s cock and then completely spilling out when the man lets go of his hands and lifts him up again, pulling out. His hole clenches and twitches around nothing and he quietly grieves the loss, finds something tragic in the way Mydei’s spent drips out of him and all the way down on the arena grounds.

Phainon barely registers being turned over until he’s staring up at Mydei, whose face looked completely wasted.

Phainon croaks out something. Some demand that Mydei agrees by pulling him into an embrace, pressing their fevered heads together. He noses into the golden hair plastered against his damp throat, kisses the lump that quivers from exertion, licks at the drop of sweat running down the side of Mydei’s face. He finds himself suddenly parched and ready to drink anything .

Sullenly, Phainon stares down at the mess of cum splattered over them before Mydei nudges at his chin with his nose and pressing against him for a lazy, sloppy kiss.

“You good, Deliverer?” he asks against his mouth, and Phainon gives a sound of assent, the words muffled by his lips again.

His eyes flutter shut, he nuzzles and pecks at him in a daze and Mydei lets out a sound similar to a dromas’ snort.

“Engaging my titan form is already taxing as it is.” Mydei hums, not enough strength in his voice for it to really carry like usual, “And fucking you on top of that…”

“Hah…all those times you battled me in this form…it took you a hundred times more than this to get even a fraction as exhausted as you are right now.”

“HKS…a battle to the death is completely different compared to bedding you.”

“Take a look at what you just shoved inside me.” Phainon narrows his eyes, “And then tell me if this is not a fight for my own life right now.”

Mydei rolls his eyes.

And then – just to be a colossal asshole, presumably larger than whatever he had stretched Phainon’s into – he slides inside him again. Phainon makes a noise like it was punched out of him and tries to bite at his nose but Mydei only smirks. Spite and one-uppance. Nothing more than that.

On the other hand, the sink is far more relaxed and slow this time. As if Mydei only really sought a place to sheath himself into (and chose Phainon, for the aforementioned reason of wanting to be a gigantic prick). He doesn't move after that, lazily cradling the Deliverer in his arms, his titan fingers tracing bored circles on his pale thighs. One human hand was splayed over his stomach, particularly over the bulge that had once again emerged.

Phainon blinks down at it as well, partly dazed, partly…befuddled. It should logically be a horrifying, disturbing thing to see in his own body and it really was the collective haze and stimulation of all those orgasms that did not really register that emotion in him.

Phainon also does not want to explicitly understand exactly what kind of restructuring had gone on inside for this to be possible.

But the fascination is still there, even with the mild layer of avoidance. In all the millions of Flame Chase journeys that he had witnessed, Phainon had never gotten the proper chance to fully explore what powers being the demigod of Worldbearing offered to him. At the time, with every Recurrence he kickstarted, Phainon had always given up the chance to just be Kephale's demigod and nothing else.

Mydei's titan dick shoved inside him becoming the catalyst for him to take the first step in that direction…had been unexpected. Not that Phainon was complaining. He knows how to take his victories when he finds them.

Idly, his own hand joins Mydei's; both the men stroking the bulge with a soft smile on their faces. The sense of fondness that blankets them over that brings about a familiar vibe for something…a little diabolical to imagine.

“It looks like I’m pregnant, doesn’t it, Mydeimos?”

Mydei’s hand halts.

“What.”

“No seriously, like my belly is swollen and we’re both petting it like we’re an expecting, young couple-”

“What the fuck, Phainon of Aedes Elysiae.”

“Like I’m carrying your child.”

“Stop.”

“But instead of ‘being with child ’, I’m ‘being with your penis ’.”

“Phainon, I swear to Titans above – shut up before I regret-”

“You know those ‘gender reveal ’ parties that Caelus talks about? If we had one of those, the announcement would probably be something like ‘Congratulations! You are having a dick! ’”

Mydei lets out a string of Kremnoan curses while Phainon throws his head back and laughs.

“I was foolish to let you catch your breath.” he snarls as he suddenly pulls out and slams back in, tearing Phainon’s laughter into a startled whine, “What I should have done-” another thrust has him howl, “-was fuck you past the point of talking altogether, Deliverer.”

Mydei’s titan form making him into such a long, spindly creature gave him…a lot of liberties on how exactly to shut Phainon up. He has his body suspended horizontally, held open like an offering while the prince fucks into him relentlessly. All while Mydei is able to completely lean his torso forward and take his leaking penis in his mouth. His scalding tongue circles and laves at his tip, prodding into the slit as if he sought to invade that as well, leaving the last of his nerves scattered.

Words abandon Phainon, left strangled in his throat as Mydei subjects him to that relentless rhythm, an endless cycle of wringing him dry and swallowing his spent.

'An ouroboros of dicks.' Phainon wants to say out loud but all that comes out is a strangled laugh, the quip left known only to his mind thanks to his tragic state of speechlessness. Oh well, he'll crack that one once they are cuddling in Mydei's nice bed afterwards.

He doesn't get to think of anymore jokes after that. Phainon hears his ears ring with his own voice – the broken gasps, the occasional scream, the chanting of Mydei’s name like he was a god he was currently in devout worship of. His mind skids across the edge of bliss-fed oblivion, brought back to lucidity with drag of his cock.

“M-Mydei-!”

He is ignored. And a harsh suck follows.

“Ungh…please-!”

Ignored again, the tip of his tongue pokes into his slit in reply. Phainon squirms, bucking his hips up before he could stop himself, his cock hitting the back of Mydei’s throat. A sharp thrust follows in retaliation and his strength slips. The blond doesn’t relent, pulling a little away to once again try and burrow his tongue into the tiny gap. Phainon wails, his hands dig into his hair, his thighs snap tightly around his head as Mydei mercilessly starts suckling at the tip.

Phainon cries out his name again and finally, the man looks up and had Phainon not been so consumed in the pleasure assaulting every inch of him and every single of his senses, he would have shivered at the raw hunger gleaming in those golden eyes.

“Please…”

“…”

“Kiss…kiss me.”

Mydei forgoes the torment, at that request, and slowly unfurls himself until he is level with Phainon and pressing their lips together, drinking up the little air that Phainon had.

And then resumes his thrusts, impassioned.

The fullness of Mydei’s length slamming deep inside his stomach, the stars flashing at the edges of his vision, his nerves left raw and strung tight soon has the world short out in white and static. Phainon drowns in rapture – overstuffed, overstimulated, undone – the quivering of his own body slips from his notice before he passes out in Mydei’s hold.

˚.°⛓⛓ ✧ ⛓⛓°.˚

Putting Phainon so phenomenally in his place was always a hobby of great joy to Mydei. He absolutely did not mind putting him back together from the wreck he left him in – fluffing up his pillows, massaging his sore back, rubbing oil into his aching muscles-

“Wow Mydei – you really are following the ‘Twenty seven steps of after-care’ guidebook to the T huh?”

“…”

-feeding him delicacies by hand, quietly conceding to his demands for kisses and cuddles and hugs even if he had his hands full with work-

Of course Phainon was being a gigantic prick during the entirety of it solely because he knew leaving him unable to walk gave him unequivocal rights to unleash all the psychological warfare he wanted upon Mydei from the safety of his bed.

But Mydeimos was a bigger man than that; he must remain patient -

“I guess Hyacine giving you all that homework really did make you a changed man!”

“Shut up, HKS.”

Patience was Mydei’s greatest strength. He triumphed over innumerable foes solely because of his grasp on the virtues of patience and love. Values that shaped him into the magnanimous man that he was today.

And shit-talking was the weapon of verminous hyenas and Mydei wasn't falling for such cheap provocations from this bedridden gremlin of a lover he had.

Plus he did put Phainon through the wringer so he was obligated to be kind and allow him this.

And not, say, toss him bodily out of the window and into the courtyard pool like he deserved -

"Wow! A cheese platter? For me? Who would have thought our grumpy Crown Prince could be so…"

"Deliverer, do not finish that-"

"…cheesy?"

"…"

"Did you get that one-"

Patience, patience-

"Say any more than that, Deliverer and I'll shove that cheese where that sun of yours doesn't shine."

"…"

Phainon's grin only widens, feral and smug, his white teeth gleaming like a victor who got his win through nothing but treachery-

"You stuffed me enough already, though."

-and fucking patience.

One of the quirks about Castrum Kremnos rebuilding so quickly was that Phainon got to spend his post-'railed and rearranged and fucked to oblivion by a titan prince' afterglow phase in a palace. With no limits to his pampering by Mydei's hand, even if they were miles away from Okhema.

Hot baths with petals and scented candles and cute rubber duckies and chimera toys. Silver platters stacked with fruits, breads, cheese, and chocolates, hand-fed to him by Mydei (the prince himself!). Getting massaged by those nice hot hands of his.

And of course, getting kissed and cuddled and caressed for hours.

On top of all of this, Phainon also got to goad and annoy Mydei as much as he liked with no consequence. Watching him so obviously clench his jaw while pretending to be the picture of composure? Marvelous. Testing Mydei's restraint, watching him so obviously hold onto it, was a favourite sport of Phainon. Because out of everything Mydei had – his strength, his looks, that damn body of his – it was his restraint, so integral to him as a person, that was the unbelievably sexiest asset of his. It was his restraint that had been the sole reason he hadn't broken Phainon into half while fucking him in his titan form.

Anyway, long story short, Phainon was living the life in those decadent days getting thoroughly spoiled – just lounging around in a simple, airy chiton with no tight pants or numerous belts and straps (the choker still stayed on) or heavy coat or armour or boots to fuss over.

Which does make up for him being completely confined to bed the whole time, only getting away from it when Mydei carried him around. Because his body still felt as if he had been grabbed by his ankle and slammed back and forth on the concrete like dirty laundry. And that was putting it lightly.

But it was all so damn worth it.

And it was all going quite smoothly until Hyacine shows up. With Aglaea in tow.

Fast-forward to the two women sitting beside his bed, sipping at their cups of pomegranate tea. Slurping at it. Loudly slurping at it. It was psychological warfare – Phainon knows it.

Aglaea had her usual ‘blank but 10 seconds away from giving you hell ’ look on her face. Hyacine was closer to the hearth, roasting a marshmallow over the small flame flickering in it. But her eyes were fixed upon Mydei, smiling eerily brightly up at him. A smile that didn’t reach her eyes. Soulfully eldritch. She mildly looked like it wasn’t the marshmallow she wanted to grill over the fire.

Meanwhile Ica was busy with the plate of apple pies sitting on the tea table.

Mydei, on the other hand, was standing in between them instead of sitting. As much as it was amusing to see a towering warrior of a guy like him looking subdued like a scolded child, Phainon definitely knows they were in trouble.

Mydei had turned oddly pale before refusing a cup of pomegranate tea for some reason. Definitely another front of this psychological assault from Hyacine.

“Hello, Phainon.” the Goldweaver gives him a short nod, “I have not seen you for quite some days.”

Phainon throws another glance at Mydei.

Had he not sent her the memo about him being ‘mysteriously indisposed ’?

“Oh, I got the memo about you being ‘mysteriously indisposed ’ alright.” Aglaea continues lightly and Phainon lightly chokes on the tea, “But when I conveyed that to Lady Hyacinthia during a casual chat, she got quite worried. She insisted on checking up on you, so I decided to come along with her.”

Phainon coughs. They really hadn’t prepared a cover story for this.

“Lady Hyacine…this time, it really isn’t like what you fear.”

Hyacine’s smile doesn’t budge as she tilts her head, one ponytail nearly dipping into Aglaea’s tea before a golden thread swats it away.

“Really?”

“What is ‘not like ’ what this time, Phainon?”

No one says anything. Ica looks up from the pie plate, blinking up at the four demigods in confusion.

Hyacine crosses her arms, taking a small bite out of her nearly blackened marshmallow, “Well! How about you explain, Mydei?”

The overtly bright suggestion makes Mydei look even more withered than before.

“…Lady Hyacine believes that…my handling of Phainon is careless.” Mydei answers, voice constipated, “And that his current state is a result of that.”

“…Careless.” Aglaea repeats flatly.

“Due to…poor technique.” Mydei’s soul clearly left his body as he said it and Phainon just throws his arm over his mouth, biting into it to stop his laugh.

Aglaea blinks and repeats, thoroughly confused, “Poor…technique?”

“As in, Lord Mydei is bad at intercourse.” Hyacine explains, cheery and merciless, and Mydei twitches weirdly like he swallowed something wrong.

“Oh.” Aglaea blinks rapidly, a mix of realisation but mostly exasperation dawning upon her face, “ Oh …” she repeats, pressing her palm against her forehead, shutting her eyes.

“This. Is a. Travesty, Deliverer! ” Mydei mouths angrily at him.

‘Why does it matter if they think you’re bad; I’m the only one you have sex with anyway and I know you’re great. ’ is what Phainon wants to say but this was probably not the time to incite an academic discussion on Mydei’s bedroom proficiencies.

“He…Mydei wasn’t that bad this time, Hyacine.” Phainon says instead, “It may look bad, but I’m actually in a condition far more stellar than all the times I visited your clinic.”

The medic silently sticks another marshmallow on the stick while Aglaea takes another sip of her tea.

“I…speak the truth.” Phainon feels heat creep up his nape, “He really was gentle with me this time!”

And totally didn’t reshape the structure of his body by railing him in titan form!

“He even followed that ‘27-Step Aftercare Routine ’ that you prescribed-”

“Stop bringing that up you scoundrel !” Mydei finally snaps.

But Hyacine still doesn’t say anything, just boring her borderline sociopathic teal eyes into him, sticking the marshmallow into the fire without even looking.

Gosh, why were blue-adjacent eyes so damn unsettling to look at?

“And well…” Phainon clears his throat, at this point having no fucking idea why someone wasn’t shutting him up already, “You know what they say about the sex being good if they can’t walk afterwards…?”

And Mydei did a good job. A fantastic job. An earth shattering, ‘completely filling him up and leaving him so stretched he couldn’t shut his legs fully for hours afterwards ’ level of job.

Not that Phainon could say that out loud.

Aglaea tries to take another loud slurp of her tea but pauses and tilts the cup, realising it was now empty.

“…As a medic .” Hyacine finally speaks, presumably deciding to pause the torment or take it a step further, who knows, “I cannot be supporting that theory, you know. Especially if there are internal injuries.”

Phainon swallows. Well, there weren’t any actual injuries aside from some nasty bruising but there was definitely something that went on internally-

“I…am fine, really. Nothing outside of being… reasonably sore .” is what he decides to summarize it as.

“You should be able to walk around a bit, then.” Aglaea swoops in with that; unexpected, devastating .

“Of course I can walk around!” Phainon laughs nervously, “Hell – I can even parkour around all the buildings outside and make Castrum Kremnos look like a simple sandcastle!”

Mydei pinches the bridge of his nose.

“Just walking is fine.” Aglaea returns, strained.

And so, Phainon slowly straightens and stands up. And his legs give out on the first step and he drops like a sad house of cards on the red-gold carpet. Pain also blooms over his back, just to salt his psychological pain with physical.

Slowly, Phainon turns his head up.

The three demigods and Ica stare down at him.

“Ah – aha! Don’t think much about this one. My legs were asleep since I haven’t really used them much at all.” he hurriedly explains and tries to get up again.

Plops back down again, the ache in his lower back spiking up again.

“Ugh – aha…they aren’t waking up at all! Sleepyheads…”

“…”

“…Doot?”

Mydei lets out a short, sharp huff before firmly stepping close and scooping Phainon up in his arms.

“This is worse than all the other times!” Hyacine diagnoses as Mydei tucks him back into bed before sitting beside him with a sigh, “At least Snowy could start walking a bit by the end of the day! And this time, it has been what – a week?”

“You – you see, we just tried out…something new.”

Slowly, Mydei turns towards him, panic slowly kindling in his eyes.

“…What was it?” Hyacine prods, sounding almost fearful.”

Phainon locks eyes with Mydei.

‘Don’t worry, Mydei, my love. Trust me.’ he fondly thinks, ‘I would rather die than say a word about how your titan cock nearly sent me to the Sea of Souls.’ And then Phainon answers, with this newfound strength to protect-

“Chiropractor roleplay.”

Dead silence befalls. The fire stutters weakly. Hyacine stares at him like Phainon had just announced he eats cement for breakfast. Her second marshmallow crumbles to ash in the fire. Even Ica does not doot anymore.

Aglaea's mouth opens a fraction, then closes again, before she finally breaks the painful silence, "…Chiropractor roleplay."

"Yes. I was the patient and Mydei was the chiropractor. And he basically…" Phainon buffers for a bit, "…chiro-ed my practors."

Mydei stares at him with the countenance of a king watching his kingdom burn; who had just realised his entire dynasty was going to be remembered for this.

Hyacine slowly drags a hand down her face. And then she stands. Hard. The chair tips behind her, deftly straightened by a golden thread.

"I don't know what horrifies me more. The fact that you believe in chiropathy or the fact that you found something sexually gratifying about it for all…" she makes a vague sweep of her arm towards the two men, "… this ."

Mydei slowly doubles over, his elbows on his knees, and buries his face into his palms. His golden hair falls over him like an extra bastion of preserving his dignity.

Hyacine suddenly throws a wild look at the carpet before diving down and scooping Ica up in her arms, holding it out towards Phainon.

“Ica! Scan him!”

Phainon stares at the animal that was currently appraising him with its unsettling, beady eyes. He sees Mydei twitch before the prince slightly looks up from his hands.

“That gluttonous beast can do x-rays?”

“Mydei.” Aglaea says in warning.

“…Apologies, Goldweaver but you told me ‘fat fuck ’ was a name too crude to refer to it by.”

Evidently finished with its scan, Ica turns its snout towards his master, letting out a series of doots. Hyacine’s face twists more and more with horror with each doot.

“WHAT?! ” she shrieks at the end of it, making everyone in the room flinch, even Aglaea.

“…Do I even wish to know what is wrong?”

“His…his internal structure…” the medic clutches at a ponytail, squishing it in her palm as if she needed a stress relief ball, “It is…off.”

Phainon freezes. Mydei straightens up a little, amber eyes staring him down from the gaps between his fingers.

“HKS-! Did you not put yourself back together?!” he hisses.

“What do you mean ‘put himself back together’?! ” Hyacine almost wails, “WHAT DID YOU DO TO HIM IN THE NAME OF CHIROPATHY ??!”

Mydei just covers his face again while Phainon hurriedly presses his palm against his stomach.

Damn it all. He had thought his body had adjusted back to normal in the first couple of days but-

“My bad, Hyacine – but don’t worry, it’s just an inch off-”

“…Do we want to know what exactly is an ‘inch off’, here?” Aglaea deadpans and then stares at Mydei, “How…how intense were you…?”

“I’m aware -” Hyacine vents, crushing both her ponytails in her hands this time, “-that Cas’ stories talk about ‘rearranging guts ’ being a hot thing all the time. But in real life, that is a medical emergency , Mydeimos!”

“It wasn’t me…” Mydei grunts before his hands drop to his lap, turning his head sideways to throw Phainon a murderous glare, “This hyena…used his worldbearing powers.”

“And – and I just corrected it! My kidneys are both aligned now!” Phainon hurriedly adds once he feels his gut settle. He gives his ribs a tap for emphasis, “You don’t have to worry now.”

Hyacine stares at him like he was some demon that had strayed back into her sights after an exorcism.

“But you had to resort to such drastic measures because - your kidneys, Phainon! KIDNEYS!”

“And all because of Mydei’s…poor handling.” Aglaea finishes the sentence, “Was your grasp on chiropathy that inadequate-”

“I’M NOT INADEQUATE!” Mydei finally roars, throwing his arms up in the air, “I’m ADEQUATE actually! No – MORE THAN ADEQUATE, in fact! My technique is ANYTHING but lacking and I shall not have my name be slandered anymore because this HKS can’t handle my-”

“Mydei!” Phainon calls out, strangled.

Mydei’s mouth snaps shut, the realisation of what he had started to blurt out obviously choking him into silence and turning his cheeks crimson enough to match his tattoos.

Phainon blinks, a lagging mortification towards this entire thing finally catching up to him. He runs both his hands through his hair; for he, after all, had engineered this whole mess in the first place. Actually, why even stop at this point; this conversation had already dropped to levels where neither of them was going to come out of, without their dignity in shreds.

Slowly, Phainon turns towards the window. It was becoming increasingly tempting to throw himself off it, rush to the construction zones in the city and take a dive into the first gigantic smelting crucible that he finds out there. He was sure the molten metals were going to be relievingly cooler than his currently burning face anyway.

Then again, not that Phainon could even try that, judging from his disastrous attempts to walk a handful of minutes ago.

"…Handle your what." Aglaea mercilessly prods and Phainon starts to have a sneaking suspicion that this woman had been feigning her disconcertment all this time and was thoroughly enjoying this, actually.

"…My physique." Mydei croaks, painfully.

"Your phys-"Aglaea stops. Hyacine frowns in confusion. Ica, on the other hand, aims its beady eyes towards Mydei this time, before letting out another series of doots.

The medic's cheeks turn red.

"Huh…he's – oh. Oh, so that was what…"

Nobody spoke after her voice trailed off like a thought she wished she could stuff back into her head.

And then Mydei looks down at his crotch for a brief second before looking back up.

"Hyacine, please tell me you did not tell that creature to scan my-"

'Penis ' remains unsaid, presumably because Mydei still had enough will in him to remain appropriate in polite company.

“I didn't tell Ica anything – they did it themselves!”

“But…it does bring something to my attention.” Hyacine says carefully, narrowing her eyes, “Little Ica’s report is still a little worrying considering…human proportional standards. Lord Mydei – have you ruled out the possibility that this is…a condition?”

Mydei continues staring at her. Phainon was sure in all the memories of the 33 million cycles they had gone through, no one had even studied his conspicuous, immortal, absurd, healthy, perfect and sexy body and told Mydei “Sir, your enormous cock is a disease.”

“I mean!” Hyacine shakes both her hands, “I just wanted to clarify… because it can really be debilitating too, as we can see from Phainon’s regular…infirmities. I wanted you to know there are options to correct-”

“He does not need a dick-reduction surgery!” Phainon exclaims, sitting up abruptly because immediately collapsing back down, biting back a wince from how his back protests.

All three demigods stare at him again.

“… Please. No.” Phainon’s voice trembles, “He…my Mydei is perfect in every way .”

Mydei runs a hand over his face.

And then stares straight at the two women.

“Do you see?”

“You need to clarify whether it is literal or metaphorical.” Aglaea replies.

“…”

Mydei runs another hand over his face.

“…Metaphorical.”

“Alright.”

“Do you see the problem?”

Hyacine turns slowly, her movements carrying a tinge of accusatory dramatics, towards Phainon.

“…The problem…was you all along, Phainon.”

Phainon blinks slowly like a broken owl.

“Huh.”

“I’m always about practising restraint.” Mydei continues, thinning his lips, “But he…insists. His greed…knows no bounds.”

Hyacine's eyes narrow, “Like Ica.”

“Doot-doot!”

“Wait – why are you two onto me now-”

"And would I be wrong to suspect that he was the one who pitched the ‘chiropractor roleplay ’ idea as well?" Aglaea folds her arms.

“He did.”

“Wha – MYDEIMOS??!” Phainon nearly flips the bed over. In theory.

“And when I say no to him, he makes those eyes.”

Aglaea hums with a grim nod. “Making it quite difficult for you to not indulge, I imagine.”

“WHY ARE YOU GUYS GANGING UP ON ME.”

“It seems like Snowy himself disregards his limits.” Hyacine crosses her arms, glaring at him sternly, “As always.”

“Yes, no matter how gentle I am-” Mydei stares down at him just as severely, “It is all for naught if he insists otherwise.”

“…”

Phainon locks his eyes with Mydei’s and Mydei holds it. Calm and severe.

Only on the surface.

It is, but a sham, revealed to him because no one could read that man as well as Phainon could. In those amber eyes, he sees that very glint Mydei would get seconds before kissing Phainon on the mouth when their spars hit a bottleneck, cheating his way into victory. He sees that ghost of a smirk pulling at Mydei's lips, a peephole to the treachery that gripped his soul!

"It might be best if you placed some medical restrictions on him for his own good, Lady Hyacine."

The betrayal. Oh, the sheer audacity of this prick to say all that and throw him under the dromas with a straight face! Was this Mydei's way of getting back at Phainon for all the shit he had given him in the past few days? Oh Phainon wants nothing more than to pick up the bed and hurl it at this man, had his back not been hurting like a bitch.

"Mydeimos you backstabbing piece of shit!" Phainon yells.

"I woefully cannot hold a candle to the man who did that to me, quite literally, millions of times."

Phainon gasps. Aglaea covers her face with a hand. Hyacine mumbles something about 'Mydei we talked about this- '.

"You did NOT just go there."

Mydei shrugs and Phainon summons enough strength to throw a pillow at him because tearing his heart out, turning blond and dropping a planet on this fucker wasn't socially acceptable anymore.

"At least I was gentle with your back, Deliverer."

GENTLE?! Oh, how badly Phainon wants to crawl up the palace walls and yell out for all of Amphoreus to hear, how this conniving bastard had obliterated him in his titan form and now was parading around all innocent! Oh, jail for this deceitful creature, jail and a year's sentence of being fed nothing but cabbage and butter!

Yet when Phainon looks at his lover, he knew it was not just the face of a sinister traitor, but also a man who knew he wouldn't say a word .

Because, this was all, in the end of the day, a circumstance engineered by Phainon. He was the one who had asked Mydei to fuck him in his titan form, and had begged and praised him for more over and over again-

Phainon had, once again, been the face behind his own misery. Had written his own tragedy.

"Anyway." Hyacine sits down again, scribbling something furiously in her notebook, "No sex for you for a month, Snowy."

"A MONTH??!!" Phainon looks frantically at Mydei who, for the first time in the last few minutes, looked slightly bothered, "Mydei! Say something!"

The prince holds his gaze for a breath before giving a weak shrug.

What the fuck happened to the man who used to roar about his 'unyielding resolve ' and 'never giving his Coreflame without a fight' to Phainon in every damn Recurrence?!

“You – Mydei, you know this affects you too, right?!”

“Calm down, Phainon.” Aglaea gives a small shake of her head, “Hyacine is only prescribing this to you for your recovery .”

“But a month is way too much!”

“Naturally some punishment is in order.” the blonde leans against her chair, “Since injury does not deter you from indulgence, forced abstinence shall.”

“Ha…I’m actually being kind enough here to specify that you are just not allowed to do anything that involves you receiving .” Hyacine huffs, “And besides, Snowy, you cannot be rearranging your insides just to have sex with Mydei.”

Phainon puffs out his cheeks and stares sullenly at Mydei, “Look – he rearranges my guts like that anyway even if I don’t do anything. So like, you know, might as well rearrange myself before Mydei does it…” he blinks up at the three, a sudden small revelation lighting him up, “That’s – that’s actually kind of a power move on my part if you think about it, no?”

Mydei’s mouth twitches before he shares a look with the two women, “See? The harder we argue, the more he proves he’s a hyena with a death wish.”

Phainon really would have pounced on him for that, had he not been in the state that he was.

˚.°⦚⦚ ✧ ⦚⦚°.˚

The two women finally decide to leave after a while. Not before Hyacine, with brisk efficiency, casts a rainbow healing ward around Phainon (from the way the hyena sags into the bed after that, he clearly got a lot of relief from it) and drops a small pouch of candies on the bedside table. And Aglaea gives Mydei a knowing look that he returns while Ica gives a few doots in farewell.

And then they are finally left alone to stew in…whatever had just transpired.

Mydei has a feeling they won't be able to return to the golden city and show their faces to those two anymore. At least he couldn't, considering everything – from his bedroom prowess to measurements - had been discussed and deliberated. Mydei tries to comfort himself with the thought that at least no one could call him bad at sex anymore but his dignity had been collateral damage in the process.

There should be a word in the Kremnoan dictionary for winning the battle and losing the war.

Shaking his head, Mydei climbs onto the bed, Phainon looking up from the pillows to throw the meanest look he could shape his face into at him.

It only makes him look damn cute. Mydei pinches his cheek and Phainon tries to bite at his fingers. He wants to feel a little sorry for him, but in hindsight, Mydei didn't. This little shit deserved it. Phainon was the one who begged for his cock and then landed in Hyacine's clinic afterwards. Phainon was the one who pitched the titan fucking idea.

And Mydei's dignity was what suffered the consequences of all these demands.

Sinking into the duvets, Mydei grabs his lover, who gives a feeble struggle but ultimately concedes to being dragged over to lie on top of him, letting him wrap his arms around him.

“Fuck you , Mydeimos.” he hears him snap, voice mostly muffled from being buried in his chest.

“…The whole point is that you didn’t .”

Phainon responds to that by biting his nipple and Mydei yells, nearly throwing him off.

“Once I get back to my feet, I’ll return the favour, Mydeimos.” he hears him grumble, nuzzling deeper into his chest. Hmph, this scoundrel could throw all the tantrums he wanted, but letting him burrow into his chest always quietened him down a bit.

“Really?”

“You will be bed-ridden for a month.”

“Hah – I may be bad at math, Deliverer but past experiences indicate a negative percent chance of success for you in that endeavour.”

“Yes you clearly do suck at math.”

“Since I am no wuss like you, what leaves you limping only feels like the aftermath of a rough spar to me.”

“Don’t push me, Mydeimos.”

“My mere constitution makes me fare better than you as a bo-”

Phainon tries to roll away at that and lets out an irritated grunt when Mydei’s arms tighten around him, keeping him in place.

“Slithering away already?” Mydei bites his ear while Phainon gives a weak-hearted squirm. He runs his other hand down the length of his back, stopping at the base of it.

Hook.

“And here I was, thinking of giving you another massage before bed.”

Phainon pauses.

Line.

Mydei smirks and splays his palm over his lower back and starts a slow, circular knead. Phainon shudders and melts against him.

“…Tch.”

And sinker.

“Fine.” Phainon grumbles, letting out a low hum as Mydei’s hand slips beneath his chiton to directly touch his skin, “…I’ll get back to you once I recover.”

“Indulge in your rest and vengeance against me well then, Deliverer.” Mydei kisses his ear again, keeping his mouth pressed against it. Phainon makes another small sound, before giving his chest a little peck in return.

Mydei curls his fingers into his soft silver hair, kissing into his hair.

And he gets another kiss on his chest; Phainon was clearly taking this as some small competition. Mydei scoffs.

Loveable, troublesome little hyena, he was.

But for all the trouble that Phainon’s demands had caused, Mydei was looking forward to that ‘training’ to be resumed once again.

‘I suppose the Lance of Fury has uses beyond Strife. ’ the prince muses to himself as he slowly sinks into a cozy afternoon nap with his lover.
